The FASHIONS for AUTUMN and WINTER.

GRAND DISPLAY EVERY DAY, at FARMER'S.

Every Feature of Fashion represented, to particularize is impossible.

FARMER'S NET CASH SYSTEM.

This system certainly offers advantages unknown where credit obtains. Equitable alike to both buyer and seller, it is from its inception, and in its development, possessed of facilities and advantages which fairly command astonishment when contrasted with any results of a credit system. A DIRECT SAVING OF 25 PER CENT. is no mere hyperbole, but a fact seen and realized, and unhesitatingly guaranteed to every one of our patrons.

FARMER and COMPANY.

ARTISTIC MILLINERY.

The spring fashions for 1882.—Millinery for the Race Meetings, just received from Paris, opened for inspection to-day, perfectly new styles, the introductions of the best artistes. FARMER'S GUINEA BLANKETS.

MOURNING DEPARTMENT.

This department is replete with every necessary for family or complimentary Mourning; and in submitting to the notice of the public a few items, we cannot say they represent our stock, which embraces every texture and make approved and worn. We hold an immense stock, including Scarboro' Serges, 29 in. wide, 10½d per yard; All-Wool Serges, 1s, 1s 3d, 1s 6d; Homespuns from 1s to 1s 9d; Persian Cords, 27 in. wide, 10½d, 12½d, 18d, and 18d; French Cashmeres, 46 in. wide, 2s, 2s 6d, 3s, 3s 6d, 4s 6d; French Merinoes, 46 in. wide, 3s, 3s 6d, 4s, 4s 6d, 5s 6d; Needle-worked Costumes, handmade, 75s to 6 guineas; 100 pieces of double Brilliantine Alpacas, 7d to 2s; French Llamas from 11½d; French Grenadine, in plain and figured, from 1s; Brocaded Silk Grenadines, for evening wear, 2s 6d, 3s 6d, 4s 6d.

FARMER and COMPANY.

HABERDASHERY.

OUR WELL-KNOWN HOUSE gives particular attention to the requirements of this important department. The best makers' goods alone are kept, and our enormous purchases for cash secure for us every possible advantage the market can offer. The immense and daily increasing trade done at this counter evidences the growth of our trade as much as any other department does, and the satisfaction felt and expressed by our Customers in the use of the numberless items we here offer, affords us every assurance for the future. We like to tell the public about what we have to sell, there is nothing like doing this nowadays, but we cannot enumerate—"too much of a good thing" altogether. For replenishing your sewing-machines and work-baskets we have THE BEST BRANDS in Pins, Needles, Cottons, Tapes, Elastics, Threads, Braids, Buttons, Mendings, Hooks and Eyes, Twists, Machine Silks, Thimbles, &c., &c., &c.

FARMER and COMPANY.

LADIES' GLOVES.

The new undressed Kid or Suede Glove is now the favourite. We have them in black and dark shades, 4 buttons, a very superior make, and just landed. We would mention also our celebrated 2-button Kid Gloves at 2s 6d, and Farmer's Normandy 4 buttons, 3s 11d; 6 buttons, 4s 11d; 8 buttons, 5s 11d per pair. We do not know who made the first gloves, for Xenophon speaks of the Persians wearing them; but we know who, to-day, sell the best at the lowest price.

FARMER and COMPANY.

RIBBONS.

A parcel of magnificent Ribbons now opened. Newest shades for the spring in watered, moire, brocades, satin, merveilleux, lace edged, tissue royal, chenille fringe edged, in short, in every style, width, and colour produced.

FARMER and COMPANY.

WINTER HOSIERY.

We are this week offering in this department special lines, which we ask the public to note, viz., Ladies' Black Cashmere Ribbed Hose, 12d and 18d per pair; seal brown, 21d; childrens' ribbed cashmere in grenat, navy, seal, sky, and black, from 15d; coloured cashmere, embroidered, in ladies' and childrens' sizes, marvellous value, 8½d per pair. All the newest colours in lisle thread and silk, embroidered sides and fronts, for evening wear. James the First of Scotland would never have borrowed the Earl of Mars' silken hose could he but have seen what we are now showing. Please note also Wool Squares, from 7d to 2s 6d; Wool Clouds and Wraps from 3s 11d to 10s 6d, in all colours.

FARMER and COMPANY.

HOUSEHOLD LINENS.

The magnitude of our stock in this department, the endless variety, and the matchless value at all times offered, have combined to make this department a household word with the people of the Australias. Our imports manifest a studied determination and energy on the part of our home buyers (for whatever they have undertaken has met with unqualified success), only equalled by the genuine character of the goods purchased. We are now in receipt of an immense shipment of HOUSEHOLD LINENS, to which we invite the attention of a discriminating public, feeling confident that our opinion will be endorsed—that "never before in Sydney has such a shipment been submitted." We should be lost in attempting to particularise, but we would mention the few following lines as items we should like all our patrons to inspect. Our

Damask Napkins at 5s 6d, 6s 6d, 7s 6d, and 8s 6d per dozen

Damask Cloths at 2s 6d, 3s 6d, 4s 6d, 5s 6d, 7s 6d, 10s 6d, and upwards

One Guinea ditto ditto, 12 feet long by 7 feet wide

Linen Sheetings, Diapers, &c., &c.

FARMERS' GUINEA LONGCLOTHS—FINE QUALITIES.

Another large supply just to hand, and the finer qualities for which some of our patrons have been waiting.

FARMER AND COMPANY.

QUILTS.

OUR GUINEA QUILT is unrivalled in our exhaustless assortment, in light, medium, and heavy texture, 3 yards long, 2½ wide. We can supply Quilts in every conceivable make, and our prices start from 5s 9d each; a low price this, but the Quilts are worth more. We have, too, the NEW CROCHET QUILT, full size for double bed, at 10s 6d; ditto, for single beds, 6s 11d. Also, we have specially imported for this department an extra large-sized Quilt, measuring 3½ x 3½ yards. COLOURED QUILTS, all sizes, from 3s 6d each. We ask attention to the NEW MITCHELINE QUILT, in white and buff, with or without fringe. TOILET COVERS to match, and in

TOILET COVERS.

NOTIFICATION OF RESUMPTION OF LAND UNDER 44 VICTORIA, No. 16.

NEW SOUTH WALES, TO WIT.

By His Excellency the Right Honorable Sir Augustus William Frederick Spencer Loftus (commonly called Lord Augustus Loftus), Knight Grand Cross of the Most Honorable Order of the Bath, a Member of Her Majesty's Most Honorable Privy Council, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of New South Wales and its Dependencies.

WHEREAS I, the Governor aforesaid, with the advice of the Executive Council of the said colony, have duly sanctioned the carrying out of certain works for and in connection with the sewerage of the City of Sydney and its suburbs, in the said Colony, for and towards the completion of which said works public funds are available under the provisions of the Public Works Loan Act of 1879, and whereas the lands hereinafter described are required for the construction of the said works: Now I, the Governor of the said colony, with the advice of the Executive Council of the said colony, in pursuance of the powers in this behalf given to or vested in me by the Lands for Public Purposes Acquisition Act, do, by this notification published in the Gazette and in a newspaper, that is to say, in the Sydney Morning Herald, circulated in the police district wherein the said lands are situated, declare that the lands hereinafter described have been resumed for the public purposes hereinafter mentioned, that is to say, for and in connection with the sewerage of the said city of Sydney and its suburbs, to the intent that upon the publication of this notification in the Gazette, the legal estate in the said lands shall forthwith be vested in the Minister for Public Works and his successors on behalf of Her Majesty for the purpose of the said last-mentioned Act, for an estate of inheritance in fee simple in possession, freed and discharged from all trusts, obligations, estate, interests, contracts, charges, rates, rights-of-way, or other easements whatsoever, and to the intent further that the legal estate therein, together with all powers incident thereto or conferred by the said Act, shall be vested in the said Minister as a trustee with the powers stated in the said last-mentioned Act: And I declare that the following is a description of the lands hereinbefore referred to, that is to say:—
All that piece or parcel of land situate in the parish of St. George, county of Cumberland, and colony of New South Wales: Commencing at a point on the east bank of Muddy Creek, which point is the north-west corner of W. Winter's property, and bears north 80 degrees 45 minutes west 10 links from a post marked with a broad arrow; and bounded on the south by the north boundary of W. Winter's property and the Filey Estate, bearing south 80 degrees 42½ minutes east for a distance of 422½ links to high-water mark, Botany Bay; bounded on the south-east and east by the waters of Botany Bay; on the north by the waters of Cook's River; and on the west by the east bank of Muddy Creek, to the point of commencement,—being a piece of land known as Webb's grant, containing 300 acres, the different parts of which, W. H. Stathans,—Plomley, C. Irvine, J. Blackman, R. Linch, M. Doyle, M. Cooper,—Macaulay, W. Wilson, and Lee Lord, are the reputed owners.
In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the great seal of the colony to be hereto affixed, at Government House, Sydney, this third day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two, and in the forty-sixth year of her Majesty's reign.
By his Excellency's command,
JOHN LACKEY.
God Save the Queen.

PASTORAL LEASES ACT OF 1869.
SALE OF THE UNEXPIRED TERMS OF LEASES OF FORFEITED RUNS OF CROWN LANDS IN THE UNSETTLED DISTRICTS.

The attention of Stockowners and others is drawn to the notices in the Supplements Nos. 9 and 10 to the Government Gazette of the 8th instant, having reference to the undermentioned Forfeited Runs, situated in the Unsettled Districts, the unexpired terms of the leases of which will be offered for sale by auction, at the rooms of Arthur Martin, Queen-street, Brisbane, on TUESDAY, 15th August, 1882.
The abovementioned notices set forth the upset prices, areas, unexpired terms of lease, and descriptions of the boundaries of the runs in question, and, when surveyed, the survey fee payable.
Many of the runs in this sale adjoin each other, and embrace an aggregate area suitable for a large pastoral property.
Plans of the surveyed runs may be seen and all information obtained at the Public Lands Office, Brisbane.

WOOL. WOOL.
THE SEASON OF 1882.
In again addressing the Woolgrowers of the colonies, we would call attention to the very large quantity of Wool which was sold in this market during the past season. In our last year's Circular, prior to the opening of the season, we pointed out that there would be a heavy increase in the quantity which would be sold in the colonies, and that good prices would rule, and the result justified our expectations. We are also certain that if producers would compare the prices realized in the colonies with the home prices, the balance will prove to be much in favour of the LOCAL MARKETS.
We again confidently predict an active demand during the ensuing season, not alone from local buyers, but from buyers from England, America, and the Continent of Europe; for buyers for Germany, France, and Belgium are now represented here, and the demand will be strengthened by the fact that, owing to the prolonged dry weather which has prevailed in most parts of the interior, there will be a considerable falling-off in the quantity of Wool to come forward.
We again offer our services for the disposal of Wool in the SYDNEY MARKET, and growers may rely on our bestowing the utmost attention and careful valuing on all Wool consigned to us for sale.
Our Warehouses at the Circular Quay are large and commodious, particularly well lighted, and in all respects admirably adapted for the display of Wool to the best advantage.
In order to encourage growers to sell in this market, we offer Warehouse Accommodation at the low rate of
ONE SHILLING PER BALE
on all Wool offered by us, which may not be sold.
When owners' reserve prices cannot be obtained, we will ship to London to our Agents there, either making liberal cash advances, or we will hand over shipping documents to the owners of the Wool, as may be desired.

The half-yearly meeting of the Brickwood Tin-mining Company was held this morning, Mr. Thomas Marshall in the chair. The report showed that the amount at credit of its account on the 30th June was, for tin sold, £2602; and tin on hand, £1400; together, £4002. After providing for cost of working the mine, preliminary and other expenses, a balance in hand remained of £2602. The quantity of tin ore raised to 30th June amounted to 18 tons. Since that date 30 tons had been put out, leaving a profit of £2044, which, added to the £2602 as per balance-sheet, gave the sum of £4646, out of which the directors proposed to pay a dividend of 2s. per share. The report was adopted.

As the result of the late meeting of Importers and others at the Exchange, with a view to making more efficient provision for the removal of merchandise discharged from ships, and for the general carriage of goods to and from the various warehouses, we learn that a company, under the name of the City Carrying Company, Limited, has been formed, and that a meeting of the shareholders will be called at an early date to approve of the deed of settlement.

The Import markets to-day were not enlivened by much of general interest. Buyers do not operate with freedom in any line of goods. Breadstuff holders ask £15 10s. for best brands of New South Wales, Victorian, and South Australian flour; but the trade done is limited. The market is bare of Australian wheat. Importers of Californian are holding for higher prices. Ritchie's oatmeal, in ton lots, moving at £23. In teas, fair sales of last season's and of medium quality of new teas, at from 15s. to 60s. per half-chest are noted. In fish, sardines are moving at 4s. 10½d to 5s. for quarters, and at 9s. 6d. for halves. Tinned salmon are mostly out of first hands, and small tonics are making at 8s. 9d. to 9s. Dried fruits are without alteration in value. Dairymaid condensed milk on the spot is worth 8s.; sales, to arrive, have been made at 6d. less; other brands, from 6s. 6d. Thompson's ginger wine had sale at 20s. 6d. In brewers' goods, prime samples of Tasmanian hops are quoted at up to 2s. 3d., but the high price prevents business at the present season of the year. A line of English malt to arrive has been placed at 7s. Liquors are only in moderate demand; Hennessy's single star, case, 34s. 3d., and three star, 46s. A fair trade business is noted in Dunville's whisky at 16s. 3d., and in Royal Bland at 18s. Lowndes' rum, in hogsheads and quarters, is held for 4s. 3d.; and 4s. is asked for Preston's. Metals show no improvement in value, and the trade continues quiet; Davies' Crown brand of galvanised iron was placed at £23 10s.; business in No. 8 fencing wire of a leading brand is noted at £15 10s. and of No. 10 at £14 10s. Woolpacks continue to sell at from 3s. 2d. to 3s. 3d. Drugs are only in light request. 72 per cent. caustic soda was placed at £14 10s. Grocery goods generally are without change in value, stocks in almost every line being more than ample for the requirements of the market. There was only a moderate supply of forage at the Darling Harbour produce sales this morning. The prices obtained were:—For oaten hay, in bales, from 6s. 7d. to 9s. 2d. per cwt.; in bundles, 6s. 9d. to 9s. 1d.; straw, in bales, 3s. 2d. to 4s. 1d.; in bundles, 3s. 2d. to 4s. 6d.; hay chaff, in bales, 5s. 7d. to 7s. 6d.; oaten and wheaten hay, in bundles, 7s. On the wharfs lucerne hay of various qualities realized at auction from £6 17s. to £8 12s. per ton; maize, 5s. per bushel; best feed oats, 3s. 4d. to 3s. 8d.; inferior to good, 2s. 9d. to 3s. 2d.; bran, 1s. 5d.; pollard, 1s. 4d.; onions, £5 per ton; potatoes, New Zealand, £4 to £4 5s.; Circular Head, £5 to £5 5s.; best Victorian hay chaff, £7 10s. per ton; straw chaff, £1 15s. to £5; butter, best fresh N. S. W., 2s. 6d. per lb.; eggs, 1s. 2d. to 1s. 3d. per dozen; cheese, 6d. to 9d. per lb.; bacon, 6d. to 8d. per lb.; wax, 9d. to 11d.; fowls, 3s. to 4s. per pair; ducks, 4s. to 4s. 6d.; geese, 6s. to 8s.; turkeys, 7s. to 13s.; millet brooms, 8s. to 11s. per dozen.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 15, 1882.

In the matter of street processions, an important decision has recently been given in the English Court of Appeal. The procession by which the deliverance of the Judges was occasioned was held at Weston Super-Mare, and under the auspices of the Salvation Army. It appears that in this town there is not only a Salvation Army, but an antagonistic body known as the Skeleton Army, and naturally enough a public demonstration on the part of the one was looked upon as a good opportunity for a counter demonstration on the part of the other. Between the two armies the town of Weston was kept in constant danger of a tumult. A few months ago the state of things became sufficiently serious to necessitate the interposition of the authorities. We are told that "the Salvation Army formed its procession and paraded the streets and places, accompanied by a disorderly and riotous mob of over 2000 persons, which seems to have assembled chiefly for the purpose of molesting the Salvationists." The gathering gave rise to fighting and great disturbance, stone-throwing, and noise. For a time the police were overpowered, but on their being reinforced the mob gradually dispersed. In the midst of the tumult the Salvation Army, led by a Mr. Beatty, steadily pursued its way, but no one in the procession was seen to commit any overt act of violence. These occurrences naturally caused great apprehension in the town, and the magistrates issued a notice "requiring, ordering, and directing all persons to abstain from assembling to the disturbance of the public peace in the public places within the parish." To this notice the Salvationists gave no heed. A week later they were again on the march, and where they went the Skeleton Army followed. An order to disperse was given by the police, and this also the Salvationists disobeyed. The result was that the leader of the Army was arrested. His fellow processionists having persisted in following his example, were arrested also. The ground of their arrest was that they had caused an unlawful assembly, and one that was calculated to lead to a breach of the peace. As a result of this decision the Salvationists appealed to the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice.

In taking steps to put down the Salvationists, the Weston magistrates acted according to the express directions of the Government, and followed precedents which had been established by justices elsewhere. At Basingstoke last year the magistrates placed an interdict on the Salvationists, on the ground that their demonstrations were calculated to lead to a disturbance. The same thing was done at Stamford. It was shown that the Salvation Army had made many drunkards sober, but, partly on this account, their ostentatious piety gave offence to the roughs of the town, and so led to disturbance. The view taken by the Home Office and by the magistracy hitherto has been that when the roughs of a place avail themselves of the presence of a band of enthusiasts to get up a riot, the people to be dealt with are the enthusiasts, not the roughs. A few months ago an outdoor exhorter was imprisoned in Melbourne for doing what he considered his duty; and in the streets of Adelaide detachments of the Salvation Army have, we believe, been more than once stopped by the police. The ground for such a procedure is a plausible one, and it has hitherto been deemed reasonable. If public processions like those alluded to have not been the causes of disorder, they have led to it. Had there been no Salvationists at Weston, in all probability there would have been no tumult. The contention on behalf of the magistrates was that the processions of the Salvationists were provocative of passion, and that in this way they caused terror and alarm in the minds of peaceful people. As such processions led to breaches of the peace, it was held to be no more than right that those who joined in them should be compelled to find sureties to keep the peace. The Salvationists, it was pointed out, did not intend to force their way by fighting, but they intended to force their way, and this was the cause of fighting. "No doubt if the mob had behaved well, the Salvation Army would only have walked through the streets and walked back again, but they knew that the mob would not behave well and would create a disturbance, and by their persistence in their procession, though not themselves riotous or tumultuous, they were the cause of riot and tumult, and therefore might properly be ordered to find sureties to keep the peace."

This was the line of argument taken on behalf of the local authorities, and the Home Office had deemed it sufficient. The counsel for the Salvationists, however, insisted on a totally different view, and without hesitation the Judges took his side. In their opinion a body of men could not be forced to find sureties to keep the peace unless it had done something to render itself liable to be so dealt with, and the Salvationists had done nothing to render themselves liable. In marching through the streets in the manner described they were within the law, and were therefore entitled to claim the protection of the law. It is the business of the authorities to break up or to prevent the holding of an unlawful assembly, and an unlawful assembly is one that is formed for an unlawful object, or one which intends to carry out a lawful object riotously and tumultuously. In his place in the House of Lords a few weeks ago Lord Coleridge drew a distinction between an assembly that was held for the purposes of a tumult and one which, although lawful in itself, was by others made the occasion for one. If a procession is held to create a disturbance it is unlawful, but a gathering is not made unlawful by the unlawful conduct of those who seek to break it up. Nor does the fact that it is calculated to provoke opposition constitute a reason why it should be prevented. That, at least, is the view of the English Judges. It is the intent, they pointed out, that makes the difference between a lawful and an unlawful assembly. An organization that was bent on a riot exposed itself to the action of the law. But the fact that a riot was the incidental consequence of its proceedings was in itself no ground for public interference. A man may be aware that what he does will expose him to the danger of an assault; but his being aware of this does not make him responsible for the assault. "If," said Mr. Justice Cave, "I know that a man intends to knock me down if he sees me, and I walk out, can it be said that I provoke him to a breach of the peace?" In other words, are the rights of one man destroyed by another man's violence? The English Judges think not. The Salvationists, they hold, whether wise or not, were perfectly harmless, and the responsibility for the riots of which their processions were the occasion was not theirs, but that of the roughs whom the processionists exasperated. Such is the purport of the deliverances of the Court on a question of no small difficulty, and on one which has often turned up in the colonies as well as in the mother country. The decision is certainly in harmony with common sense, although the effect of it may be to encourage a class of public demonstrations which are sometimes a nuisance to private individuals and an inconvenience to the authorities.

We have already published an interesting letter from our special correspondent at Bordeaux on the proceedings at the opening of the Philomathic Society's Exhibition. The Melbourne Argus has a special correspondent there, whose letter also contains several points of general Australian interest. The opening ceremony was performed by M. Leon Say, who, after replying to an address, made the customary round of the buildings. On his way he called in at the Victorian Court, and smacked his lips over some of Dr Cassella and Rowan's Sauvignon, which he said closely resembled Chateau Lafitte. A few days later, at a déjeuner on board the Precurseur, four varieties of Australian wine were placed on the table in company with Chateau Coutet (identical with Chateau Yquem) of 1876, Chateau Carillan of 1874, and Chateau Margaux of 1875; but the excellent judges who were there acknowledged that the Albury Carbinet and Victorian Hermitage held their own for bouquet and flavour, though the complaint was made that they were too alcoholic. Upon the question of quality, however, the awards by the official judges will give the authoritative answer; and the points of chief interest in the correspondent's letter are those which relate to the prospects of trade in wine between France and Australia. The Australian exhibits appear to have attracted much attention, and a "disagreeable surprise" has been given to the trade by the strength and quality of our wines, and the relatively large yield per acre of our vineyards. "The introduction of our vintages to the French market for direct consumption, and not for blending, would be regarded with anything but favour." The question, however, is whether it would pay to ship them to France for blending purposes. There is an enormous demand and a proportionate importation of raw material of this sort. According to statistics furnished by the President of the Bordeaux Chamber of Commerce, the imports there had increased from 13,450 quintals in 1870 to 821,000 quintals in 1880, in which year the exports were 1,027,868 quintals, so that nearly two-thirds of the wine shipped from Bordeaux were probably of foreign growth. But when these imports from other countries, which are to be treated by local experts and sent forth as Bordeaux wines, are poured in from Spain, Portugal, Italy, and Hungary at prices ranging from £4 to £7 per hogshead, it is, as the correspondent suggests, a question for Australian vignerons to consider whether they can compete successfully in that sort of trade with producers so near the market. It has long been the opinion of some of our own best growers that before we begin to entertain hopes of an export trade we should satisfy the requirements of our own people. Under different conditions there ought to be both a larger demand and a better supply in the colonies. Whether a better supply would create a larger demand, or whether the growth of the demand should take precedence, we do not here inquire. The actual large consumption of wines of all classes in the colonies is, however, a matter beyond dispute, and it will not be creditable to the skill and enterprise of parties concerned if they cannot in the course of a few years cause the local product to take a far more important place in that consumption than it has hitherto. It would be better to drink Australian wine as Australian wine, and acknowledge it, than to ship it to France and get it returned thence for the sake of the opportunity of pouring it out of bottles with foreign names and French labels. The Argus correspondent thinks the chief benefit we are to gain from the Bordeaux Exhibition will be the promotion of local consumption. His idea is that the approval of the Bordeaux judges will give our wines admission to colonial tables from which they are now excluded by the feeling that to drink wines of European growth, and with famous names attached, is the correct thing. This is rather hard upon the owners of the said tables, and there is a foundation of truth for the implied censure. But is not the hope expressed a little over-sanguine? Would any amount of approval from European judges weigh against a prevailing fashion? Would even a gold medal weigh down a popular label? It is not a question of judgment only, but one more often of custom and appearance; and there are plenty of people who, if they were as good judges of quality as the Bordeaux experts, would still feel bound for the sake of appearances to place the accustomed labels before the eyes of guests who were less able to discriminate with their palates. Perhaps more is to be hoped from the gradual destruction of faith in these same labels. "A good many illusions on this subject," says the correspondent, "would be dissipated from the minds of numbers of worthy persons in the colonies who fancy they are drinking the best brands of French clarets, if they were to visit, as I have done, the most famous chateaux in Medoc, and learn how limited is the production of the choicer varieties, and how eagerly they are sought after by buyers to whom money is no object."

Archbishop Vaughan's address at the Annual Commemoration of St. John's College is an eloquent appeal to young men and students to be earnest and thorough, and as such it may well be taken and pondered by all those whose chief duty at present is either to learn or to teach. The address may not in its substance commend itself to the matured thinker or the logician. It was not delivered to them—its purpose was to inspire young minds with an interest or love or passion for a subject which the speaker held to be grand and useful and good. It was, in fact, a plea for the study of the Greek language—for its usefulness in itself alone, and for the untranslatable glories it holds in the recorded words of the giant minds who spoke through it to the world. Making a skilful and wise divergence from his original course, the speaker set up certain heroic old Greeks whose words still live, as examples of men whom industry and earnestness and careful preparatory study had made great, as men altogether distinct from those who are called popular speakers—who have a liberal supply of sound and effective claptrap, but no strong stock of facts or supply of well-chosen words in which to make effective delivery. He was also careful to urge how useless was the debating club if depended on as a means of making an orator. The debating school gives those who already possess that faculty, popularly described as "the gift of the gab," an increased facility, but it can never make them great. It will not teach them to reason, to think, to be true to themselves and honest to their hearers. It might, of course, be argued that oratory is only valuable as it influences men; that if the popular claptrap influences the populace, the art of claptrap should be cultivated, and the higher and deeper gifts of eloquence ignored. It would be so if the end of culture were not to raise but to pander. If the duty of the speaker were but to tickle or inflame or lead the mob, he could not well be too common or too glib or too coarse. Those who teach men to speak usually look higher, and it is well to find Archbishop Vaughan, as the acknowledged head and master and leader of a very large section of the population, looking with the highest, dealing curtly enough with youthful presumption and that glib superficiality which so often covers a contemptible and offensive ignorance. We may not possibly follow him in his earnest desire that every student should drink deeply of the Hellenic spring. Every man has not the faculty to drink deeply, and a little Greek often involves a waste of precious time; but in his plea for a broad basis and sure foundation he will be in sympathy with all who look with clear eyes at the promise of the future, and his counsel will be valuable to all those who were privileged to hear it, or who may be persuaded to read it.

Those who attempt to gauge the prosperity of a people by what is called the balance of trade can never do so accurately without regard to the condition of the country in which they live. Because the imports exceed the exports of this colony, it is said by a certain class of political economists that our condition is unhealthy—that we are over-spending our income. And our position is contrasted with that of America, which it is shown exports more largely than it imports; and which, in consequence, it is alleged, is so much more prosperous than ourselves. But between America and this colony there is a very great difference. The prosperity of America always, and especially during the last two or three years,

...has been due to its immense production of grain, which has been exported largely to Europe. The prosperity of this colony is mainly owing to its pastoral productions. The American exports are largely agricultural produce; those of New South Wales are almost entirely of wool and pastoral produce. Both are the results of labour; but the return of imports does not gauge the relative productiveness of this labour, or the prosperity of the respective countries in which it is put forth. It would be misleading to suppose that America is the more prosperous because she exports agricultural produce to the value of say £1 per head, and imports goods worth only 15s., receiving the balance in cash; while New South Wales, exporting pastoral produce to the value of £1 per head, imports merchandise worth 25s., paying a balance of 5s. in cash. And for this reason the agriculturist who exports and sells the whole of his produce returns a larger proportion of his return in cash than the grazier, whose increase of flocks and herds is not brought into market, and can form no element in the exports. The wealth of the pastoralists in New South Wales has largely increased during the decade. The number of sheep has doubled, and cattle have, in equal numbers, increased 25 per cent. The agriculturists of America have no corresponding increase in wealth—their soil has been exhausted, and requires an outlay to renew its fertility. It is clear that if the agriculturist is to have an equally profitable result from his labour with the grazier, who increases his flocks and herds, he must have a larger proportion of his income in cash. The capacity of this country for mixed grazing pursuits has been turned to account by the colonists for the acquisition of wealth. The results never have and never can be shown to our credit in any balance of imports and exports, but nevertheless must be taken into account in any comparison with those from the interior of a country like America, where people necessarily show more of their wealth in their external trade.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Events of importance has occurred in Egypt for the past few days. Arabi has reinforced his troops at Ismailia and other points along the Suez Canal. A slight skirmish took place in the vicinity of Fort Mecks. A small force of Arabi's men approached the fort, but was driven back. The proposed military convention between Great Britain and Turkey still awaits the Sultan's acceptance and signature.

The English harvest is favourable, and is considered to be better than that of any previous year in the past decade. The appointment of Bishop of Adelaide has been accepted by the Rev. Mr. Kennion, Vicar of Bradford. The Labourers' League in England is extending its agitation at present. A representative conference has been held at Manchester, and numerous meetings are being held throughout the country.

The P. and O. Company's steamship Clyde, with the English mails via Suez to July 14, is due at King George's Sound to-morrow evening. As she left Adelaide on the day before time-table date, her arrival at Albany may be announced to-day.

The extension of the tramway to the Glebe will be opened for traffic to-day, as also will be the extension to the Circular Quay, as far as the Treasury parade. The [illegible] locality will be for some time to come the northern terminus of our tramway system, and Elizabeth-street will thus be relieved of a great amount of inconvenience.

In the Supreme Court yesterday, their Honors the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Windeyer sat in Banco. A rule was made absolute for a new trial in Ryan v. Lennon, a slander action tried at Goulburn. The rule nisi in Cook v. The Sydney and County Bank, to set aside a nonsuit, was discharged. His Honor the Primary Judge was occupied all day in hearing the evidence in the suit of Gannon v. Andrews. The case was sent to part heard. His Honor Sir George Innes and a special jury of 12 continued the hearing of the will suit Browne and others v. M'Elhone and others. Mr. Arthur Browne was cross-examined, and Mr. T. H. Browne's evidence taken in full. Mr. Alfred Alford, a stock inspector, was also in the box for a considerable time. It is considered unlikely that the case will be finished this week.

The third annual report of the Under-Secretary for Lands in connection with the occupation of Crown lands, has just been published. In it Mr. Harrie Wood says—"The effect of the survey and revision of run boundaries has been to increase the estimated area of 237 runs by 9623 square miles. During 1881, the tenders for new runs were accepted and ten runs were sold at auction, while during the year six [illegible] leases forfeited. Since the Lands Acts Further Amendment Act came into operation the rents [illegible] has been increased by £92,306; but only about [illegible] of the grazing capabilities of a large number of runs, and the applications granted show that in 202 runs the grazing capabilities have been increased by [illegible] to the extent required by law to entitle [illegible] to a renewal of his lease at the old rent. The increase in the revenue from leases for special purposes [illegible] the rents for 1881 being nearly [illegible] as great as for 1877, and the estimate of [illegible] under these leases is no [illegible]. As regards the forests, the revenue is [illegible] and for the year 1881 it exceeded the expenditure by £3002 8s. 9d."

It is understood that persons desirous of studying the works of art in our national collection can do so, subject to regulations approved by the Government. It is satisfactory to learn that the trustees have acted to [illegible] in the matter. As the selection of suitable [illegible] requires careful consideration, the question of [illegible] classes will have to remain for the present in abeyance.

A meeting of the Parkes Reception Committee was held yesterday afternoon, at Compagnoni's Rooms, Pitt-street. Mr. R. Burdett Smith occupied the chair, and there was a large attendance. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, the chairman stated that a telegram had been received from Sir Henry Parkes, stating that he would attend a banquet at Melbourne on Tuesday evening, and would leave Melbourne early on Wednesday morning, so as to arrive in Sydney about 5 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, and that he would accept the invitation of the committee to the proposed banquet at the Exhibition Building, Prince Alfred Park, at 7.30 that evening. It was stated that 335 tickets had been sold, leaving only 15 in the hands of the committee. Various matters of detail were arranged, and the meeting terminated.

At an adjourned meeting of the Conjoint Board, consisting of the Senate of the University and the directors of the Prince Alfred Hospital, Mr. Wm. S. Lewis, M.B., M. Ch., Dublin, was appointed to the office of resident medical superintendent of the Hospital; and Dr. Charles Bagnall Clark, M.B., London, M.R.C.S., England, was elected assistant medical officer. In addition to these appointments, Mr. Alfred Roberts, the honorary secretary of the board of directors of the Hospital, was unanimously elected to the office of consulting surgeon of this institution.

The monthly meeting of the Microscopical Section of the Royal Society was held in the society's rooms, Elizabeth-street, last evening, there being present—Dr. Knaggs (in the chair), Rev. George Martin, Messrs. H. Deane, G. D. Hirst, T. B. Kyngdon, R. Fraser, H. O. Walker, and F. R. Pedley, the Hon. W. M'Gregor, C.M.G., and Mr. Owen, a visitor. Mr. Sharp exhibited Tolles's camera lucida in the form of a truncated prism taking the place of the ordinary Wollaston prism. With this description of camera Mr. Sharp claims that it is much easier to delineate the internal structure than it is with the ordinary class of prism. He exhibited a series of drawings of various objects, in which the detail was far more perfectly depicted than it would be possible to do so with the Wollaston prism. Mr. T. Kyngdon exhibited the following objectives made by Carl Zeiss, of Jena, Germany:—New variable 1/4 inch objective, magnifying from six to [illegible] diameters; also 1 inch, 5.5 inch, 2.5 inch, 1.6 inch, and 1/8 inch (water immersion). These objectives were remarkable for their great beauty and perfection, and compared most favourably with lenses by the best English opticians. Mr. G. D. Hirst exhibited a gathering of some diatoms [illegible] and also a specimen of the Nitella translucens, showing the fructification. The Rev. G. Martin exhibited Crouch's new one-fifth inch objective 140 degrees, the object being a navicula cuspidata. The Hon. W. M'Gregor, C.M.G., exhibited drawings showing the parasite of the tokola (ringworm), and Mr. F. R. Pedley injected preparations of the tongue and spinal cord of a kitten.

The usual weekly meeting of the sub-committee appointed by the general conference to consider a draft bill in view of preparing an Act for the amendment of the patent law of New South Wales, was held last evening, in the council-room of the New South Wales Institute of Surveyors. Delegates were in attendance from the following bodies:—Institute of Surveyors, Engineering Association of New South Wales, Trades and Labour Council, and Australian Institute Marine Engineers. Mr. O. Blacket, Vice-president Engineering Association of New South Wales, was moved into the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were confirmed. The secretary read several clauses of the New Zealand Act. Close examination was given to these. The American, South Australian, and Queensland Acts were narrowly scrutinized, with the object of eliminating all that appeared to be objectionable in the several Acts referred to. Mr. T. G. Johnson (secretary of the Australian Institute of Marine Engineers) expressed a strong conviction that the Patent Office should be under the control of a board, removed as much as possible from departmental rule of the Government. Mr. T. S. Parrott (vice-president of the New South Wales Institute of Surveyors) was of the same opinion; and, moreover, thought that not too much latitude should be allowed to the patent officer, as it is highly to be deprecated when autocratic power is vested in the hands of a single individual. Mr. Crockett, of the Trades and Labour Council, thought the simpler the wording of the Act, and the more reasonable the fees, so would the new Act better work beneficially for the bona-fide inventor, and thus protect the product of his brain. The committee having got through 16 clauses of the proposed new law, at 10 p.m. adjourned. The hon. secretary (Mr. Edward Knapp) was instructed to convene the next meeting on Monday, 21st instant.

A meeting of the Shipmasters' Association of New South Wales was held last night for the purpose of transacting special business. Mr. W. Fraser Martin presided, and there were several members present. Mr. Smith waited on the members of the Association with a view to explaining the nature of his proposed lifeboat and raft. Both these were much approved of, especially the raft, on account of its simplicity and usefulness, and the Association promised to give him every support possible. A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Smith. After a full discussion on the bylaws it was proposed, seconded, and carried, "That a committee of five persons be appointed to arrange for a deputation to interview the Minister with a view to getting certain bylaws of the Navigation Act amended." A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the proceedings.

The weekly meeting of the committee of the International Juvenile Industrial Exhibition was held yesterday afternoon, in the offices, Inner Domain, there being present—Mr. J. P. Franki (in the chair), Captain Broomfield, Messrs. G. A. Down, H. P. Palser, and T. R. Walker. A number of applications for space were received. Five and twenty responses had been received to the committee's application for an ode to be sung on the occasion of the opening ceremony. As some members of the committee were absent, no decision had yet been arrived at as to which ode would be selected as the one to be sung. After some discussion, it was resolved to extend the time for receiving the odes till Friday next, the report of the committee to be brought up next Monday. Salaries and incidental expenses to the amount of £5 10s. were passed for payment. This concluded the business before the meeting.

A [illegible] meeting of the Iron Trades Employers' Association was held at Mr. Wearne's office, Pitt-street, on Friday evening last, presided over by Mr. J. P. Franki, the president. A majority of the following members were represented, viz.:—Mort's Dock and Engineering Co., The Atlas Co., H. Vale, Chapman and Co., Hudson Brothers, Davy and Sands, Morris Brothers, W. Grant, G. and C. Hoskins, Taylor and Wearne, Triggs and Morr, R. and R. Bradford, J. E. Babb, W. Crispin, S. Foster, W. Taylor, Sutill Brothers, Rees and Co., Fletcher and Son, J. Simpson, Stephenson and Brunwick, Pope, Maher and Son, Ball Brothers, J. Gommessen, C. Lewis, Howe and Ross, Andrews and Fowler, G. Dunsbury, E. Wordley, Milzo Brothers, Balmain Engineering Co., Lutton and Son, T. Wearne, Holliday Brothers, Mr. Dunlop, and Mr. Darracleugh. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and after the transaction of general business, the most important subject for discussion was a demand recently made by the fitters, turners, and blacksmiths in the employ of Mort's Dock and Engineering Company for an increase of wages of not less than 1d. per hour, resolutions for which had been sent to the association through the eight-hours' conference of the iron trades; and it was unanimously resolved that all firms in the association agree to give an advance of one penny per hour on the present rate of wages paid to the trades referred to, such advance to take effect from the 1st September, 1882.

A public meeting of residents at Hurstville, Peakhurst, and Bexley was held in the Blue Post Hotel, Hurstville, on Saturday evening. The object of the meeting was to discuss matters of public importance to residents in that portion of the [illegible] of Canterbury, and to appoint a committee to watch the progress, and promote the welfare of the district. The chair was occupied by Mr. Tiddey, there being a very good attendance. Resolutions were moved and carried, the principal of which were that the Government should be requested to provide for a direct mail to Hurstville, and that a separate mail-bag should be made up for delivery at Bexley; also, that the Broad Arrow or Stony Creek Road should be put in a fair state of repair, it being in an almost impassable condition at present; also, that the road leading from Kogarah to Hurstville, the only road between the two places, and which is very much used, should be put in a proper state of repair. It was also desired to have telegraph communication extended to Hurstville. Messrs. W. H. Pigott and W. Henson, M's.L.A. for Canterbury, were present by invitation, and addressed the meeting. They pointed out what had been done in the past for the district, and gave a statement of what Government contemplated doing in the future. Votes of thanks and expressions of confidence in the representatives were carried with acclamation, and the meeting terminated by a vote of thanks being passed to the chairman, and another to Mr. Kinsell for his conduct of the arrangements for bringing there and taking back the members for the district.

The Queensland football team visited the Blue Mountains yesterday, and passed a most enjoyable day, the weather being beautifully fine and clear. Several members of the leading clubs accompanied them, and the party were provided with a special saloon carriage by the Railway Department. This afternoon, the match with the University is to take place on the Association Ground, and is certain to prove very interesting. On Wednesday the visitors will try conclusions at Parramatta with the district clubs.

Our Norfolk Island correspondent, writing under date August 7, sends us the following information:—"The boisterous westerly winds still prevail, the high surf at times preventing the whaling-boats from getting to sea; notwithstanding, two more whales have been landed, one on 24th ultimo and the other on 1st instant, which will make total take to date about 13 tuns. H.M.S. Nelson, Commodore Erskine, from the Bay, with Bishop Selwyn on board, arrived on Friday evening. The Commodore landed with the Bishop, and spent the evening at the mission, and in the morning took a 'cast of the lead' round about. The ship was thrown open for inspection at midday on the 5th instant. Most of the Norfolkers and Melanesians availed themselves of the opportunity of visiting the monster. The ship's boats were placed at their disposal, and I need hardly add that all came ashore highly delighted with the ship, Commodore, officers, and all concerned. In the evening there was an exhibition of the electric light from the ship, which rather 'astonished the natives.'"

"Traveller" writes to enquire why passengers from Blacktown to Richmond should be compelled to ride in the dirtiest and oldest carriages in the possession of the Railway Department? why dingy oil lamps are used? why the rate of speed is less than on the Western line? and, lastly, why a porter is such a scarce commodity at Blacktown?

The sittings of the Central Criminal Court were resumed and concluded at Darlinghurst yesterday. G. Johnstone was charged with having committed perjury while giving evidence in the will suit of Rumpf and another v. Hicks and another. The information stated that prisoner had sworn that Mrs. Rumpf and her sister waited upon a man known as Greenwood, otherwise Andrews, at the Metropolitan Hotel, Sydney, and had a conversation with him, whereas in point of fact they had not done so. Mrs. Rumpf and her sister now swore that prisoner's evidence in respect of them was untrue, as they had not seen Greenwood at the hotel until after he was dead. Evidence was given for the defence to the effect that Greenwood had complained that the women had called upon him, and it was also contended that prisoner could have no interest or motive in swearing falsely. The jury, giving prisoner the benefit of a doubt in their minds, returned a verdict of not guilty.

The Metropolitan Quarter Sessions will be resumed at the Darlinghurst Courthouse at 10 o'clock this morning.

An inquest was yesterday held by the City Coroner, Mr. H. Shiell, J.P., on the body of Mr. Alfred Thomas, the gentleman whose mysterious disappearance from the steamship Morpeth, on her way from Sydney to Newcastle on Thursday night last, has caused so much conjecture. There was nothing in the evidence to show how the deceased fell overboard, no one on board apparently having seen him from the time he was left by his partner, Mr. Gargel, and when the search was made [illegible] was recounted. The deceased was clad, in addition to the usual articles of wearing apparel, in a heavy ulster coat, that would have materially affected the efforts of the unfortunate gentleman to keep himself afloat, had he endeavoured to do so. A verdict of found drowned, there being no evidence to show how the deceased had got in the water, was returned.

A very painful accident, which eventuated in death, happened to a child, aged about a year, on Friday evening last. The child was playing with some dress hooks, and put two or three of them in her mouth. She had a fit of coughing, and one of the hooks slipped down her windpipe. The mother took two of the hooks from the child's mouth, but was unable to reach the third. She then procured medical assistance, but still failed to extract the hook. The child was on Saturday taken to the hospital, where, after another attempt to remove the foreign body had proved unsuccessful, it was determined to perform the operation of tracheotomy. The operation was successfully performed, but it was found to be impossible to extract the hook. The child lived till Sunday, when it died.

On Sunday, at noon, a child, aged about four years, was found straying in Catherine-street, Glebe, and was handed over to the protection of the police. She was neatly dressed and apparently had been well looked after. She was taken by the police to the Benevolent Asylum.

The following is the report of the Sydney Hospital for the week ended 12th August, 1882:—Admitted: 40 males, 12 females—total, 52; discharged: 27 males, 13 females—total, 40; died: 3 males, 1 female—total, 4; remaining: 122 males, 66 females—total, 188.

The Riverine Grazier relates that as the Maggie was passing the Emily Jane and her barge at [illegible] on Thursday last, going down stream, a serious accident occurred. Two boys were in a dingy near the Emily Jane, and the captain of that steamer, seeing the Maggie coming, called to them to get aboard the barge for safety. One of the boys did so, just in time, and the other was climbing over the rail when he became jammed between the Maggie and the barge, his body revolving like a ship's "fender" between the two vessels. The poor lad's ribs were crushed and his arms broken. The Emily Jane got up stream and took the boy to the Hay hospital.

The South Australian Advertiser states that during the voyage of the Kate Irving from Burrard's Inlet she had a very narrow escape from being taken by some of the savages in the South Seas. It appears that on June 4 she was sailing along in the vicinity of Palmerston Island, when a large canoe was observed to be heading off the land with the evident intention of intercepting the barque. At first the master counted but eight men in the boat, and as the craft approached she suddenly stopped, then took in sails, and lowered the masts, after which the men took to the paddles and ranged within hailing distance. Knowing the ferocious character of some of the South Sea Islanders, Captain Scott at once constituted himself a warlike captain, and calling all hands pointed to the suspicious canoe, and exhorted his crew to fight like lions or else run the chances of being eaten by cannibals. The number of souls on board the barque was not very numerous, but the people were fitted out with whatever arms could be handed up, and the master with a warlike sword walked the quarter deck and harangued his gallant crew to "do or die." The canoe approached under oars, and one of the savages made frantic signs to the vessel to round-to, showing that they had some notion of the character of sailing ships. This, however, was not the master's policy, and a breeze springing up the vessel got such headway that the canoe was left behind. When the vessel had evidently got the weather gauge of the savages and the pursuit was of no further avail, it was seen that in addition to the eight rowers the boat was crammed full of savages, who showed in such numbers that it was more than ever apparent it was intended to attempt to take the vessel.

It is a significant circumstance (observes the S. A. Register) that the Treasurer is asking the Parliament deliberately to sanction a course which two or three years ago the Treasurers of both New South Wales and New Zealand condemned as being a source of constant anxiety. The receipts from land sales are of necessity very fluctuating, and though it was a very convenient thing for the Treasurer last year to take nearly a quarter of a million from this source to square his accounts, it will be very awkward for a future treasurer to have to meet his expenditure when he has no such resource to draw upon.

On the question of Egypt, the London Daily Telegraph observes:—"It comes to a choice between an international, an Anglo-French, or a purely English expedition. The first is almost impossible, the second is widely impolitic, the third is the probable and certainly the preferential issue. No better thing for Egypt, for Europe, or for British interests and British reputation, could form the outcome of the Conference than that, either by desire of the Powers or as a result of their inaction, we should ourselves put matters right again upon the Nile. We should, without selfish ends, accomplish what was necessary, and re-establish the welfare and tranquillity of Egypt, while certainly safeguarding our Imperial right of way. We could suppress Arabi and his military rebellion—for such it is—with less fuss and friction than any other Power. There are four things which must be done, unless England is to become disgraced, contemned, and imperilled. The first is to maintain Prince Tewfik, the second to get rid of Arabi, the third to safeguard the Canal, and the fourth to re-establish the chief features of that system which was doing such vast good to the Egyptian people."

The destruction of centuries (observes the Pall Mall Gazette) is to be repaired. For nearly six hundred years the waters of the Zuyder Zee have rolled over what was once dry land, and ships have sailed where carriages may have travelled. Several of the wealthiest financiers of Holland have now determined upon concentrating their energies in an attempt to reclaim the tract of land which has so long been lost to their country, and they are already engaged in making the surveys for a new set of those "gigantic piles" which are commemorated in the verses of Andrew Marvell. Dykes which will far outstrip the stupendous works on the island of Walcheren are in contemplation, and they will be built to such a height and of such a thickness as to stand the shock of the fiercest seas that may dash against them. Many years must necessarily pass away before works of this character can be completed, but if they should happily be brought to a successful issue, another engineering wonder will be added to the triumphs of Dutch enterprise.

As a specimen of captious criticism on cricket we give the following from the London Daily News:—"The victory which the Australian cricketers gained on Saturday over a very strong team of Gentlemen of England is undeniably a great feather in their cap. The eleven they beat was much stronger than the Cambridge Eleven which beat them recently, and even than the Orleans Club team, which would have beaten them if it had had time. No doubt the result might have been different if the order of the innings had been changed; but that is simply one of the ordinary chances of cricket. The cause of the defeat is not difficult to detect. In actual batting there was no great inequality; indeed it may be doubted whether against bowling as good as their own the Australian team would have scored as many as their adversaries. The fielding of the home team was even better than that of their rivals. But where the Australians were immensely superior was in the bowling. Mr. Spofforth recovered nearly all his old cunning, and Mr. Giffen bowled probably better than any Australian bowler has yet done (and that is saying a great deal) on English ground. On the other hand, the English Eleven were decidedly weak in bowling. It was not that they bowled badly, for the proportion of runs to overs was far from excessive; but that they did not get wickets, which is the end of bowling. When the team was finally announced this deficiency was foreseen, for there was a lack not merely of individual excellence, but of variety in the bowlers. Had Mr. Evans played according to the original plan, it is of course impossible to say that the Australians would not have won. But it is in the highest degree improbable that they would have made 338 in their first innings. At the present moment it must be confessed that most of our amateur bowlers are dunces in dauntless. No one of them this season has approached the exploits of such professionals as Peate, Bowes, or Jones."

An interesting paper on the subject of European postal traffic in 1880 has recently appeared in the Deutsche Industrie Zeitung, from which we cull the following items:—The total increase, which had been 11 per cent. in 1879 and 4 per cent. in 1878, was 7 per cent. in 1880; the total number of articles sent in 1880 being 6,295,577,[illegible]. The proportions of different articles were nearly as in the preceding year—letters and postcards, 61·5 per cent.; book packets and patterns, 15·8; newspapers, 22·3. England stands first with 1,680,724,[illegible] articles or 27·2 per cent. of the whole; next, Germany, 24·5 per cent.; then France, 19·6 per cent. (showing a large percentage in patterns and book packets, 27·6, while 15·8 is the average for Europe); Austria-Hungary ranks fourth, with [illegible] per cent.; Italy has 5·6; Russia, 3·8; Belgium, 3·2; Switzerland, 2·1; and Holland (ninth), 2 per cent. Thus the series of States whose entire traffic is over a hundred millions. These nine States have 95·2 per cent. of the European traffic, leaving only 4·8 per cent. to the 10 remaining States. Turkey is not included. The nine States show a relative decrease from 1879 (when they had 95·4 per cent. of the whole), and the smaller States an increase. Greece alone shows an absolute decrease. Nearly everywhere there is an increase of letters and post cards per head of the population; Luxembourg and Spain show a slight falling off; Russia a decrease of 10 per cent.; and Bulgaria (where the postal service had grown extraordinarily the previous year), one of [illegible] per cent.

In the report of St. John's (Darlinghurst) Church of England Sunday School it was erroneously mentioned that the teachers presented the Rev. Messrs. Torry and A. Carlotte with souvenirs. The gifts were from those members of the church who had recently been confirmed.

THE WAR IN EGYPT.

LONDON, Aug. 14.

Arabi Bey has reinforced his followers stationed at Ismailia and other points along the Suez Canal.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 11.

A Brigade of the Guards, which arrived last week, is quartered at Ramleh, about four miles from the city.

A slight skirmish has taken place in the vicinity of the fortifications, which resulted in the repulse of one of Arabi's outposts. A small Egyptian force from Arabi's main body approached the fortifications of Fort Mecks, but was driven back, and retired.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 14.

The military convention between Great Britain and Turkey, the terms of which have been formally submitted to the Porte by the British Ambassador, has not yet been settled. The document awaits the ratification of the Sultan.

SIR HENRY PARKES IN MELBOURNE.

[By Telegraph.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Sir Henry Parkes and his daughter landed from the John Elder this morning in excellent health, after a pleasant passage. At Menzies' Hotel a deputation, headed by the Mayor of Melbourne and including the President of the Chamber of Commerce, waited on Sir Henry Parkes and congratulated him in the name of the citizens of Melbourne upon his safe arrival and tendered him a banquet at the Town Hall to-morrow evening. The Mayor said the feeling in Melbourne had risen that Sir Henry's speeches in America and Europe advocated not only the interests of New South Wales, but those of all Australia, and the citizens of Melbourne did not like the idea of his passing through Melbourne without some recognition in the form of welcome. Sir Henry Parkes said he was extremely anxious to get back to Sydney, and that it was very desirable, in view of the approaching Parliamentary session, that he should be there as soon as possible; but the compliment paid him by the deputation was a very high one, and he could do nothing else but accept the invitation.

The Ministers will probably be unable to attend the banquet to Sir Henry Parkes in consequence of the pressure of public business in the Legislative Assembly, but will entertain him at luncheon to-morrow at the Oriental Hotel.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Victorian Government offered Sir Henry Parkes to make any arrangements he desired with regard to conveying him by special train to Wodonga. He will leave Melbourne by a special train on Wednesday morning, arriving at Albury about midday, and Wagga about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. There will be demonstrations at both those places. He will reach Sydney at 5 o'clock on Thursday afternoon.

The BANK ROBBERY at REEDY CREEK.

[By Telegraph.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Some further particulars have come to hand relative to the robbery of the Reedy Creek branch of the Colonial Bank of Australasia, from which it appears that the amount stolen was £1048 10s., consisting of 40 £5 notes, 707 £1 notes on the Colonial Bank, £148 in mixed notes, £27 in gold, and £2 10s. in silver. Reedy Creek is a small mining township of recent origin, situated a few miles from Kilmore. The business of the bank consists chiefly of gold-buying. William Hill, the manager of the branch, states that the bank and also the safe were locked up as usual on Friday. During the evening he went out to see a friend, and returned at about midnight and went to bed. The bank is a small weatherboard building attached to an hotel. Hill laid his coat over a chair, the keys being then in the pocket. Though his bedroom was separated from the bank only by a thin partition, he heard no noise during the night, but in the morning on proceeding to open the bank he found that the keys had been abstracted from his pocket. The bank door was locked, but he opened it by means of a duplicate key kept at the hotel. On entering the premises he found the safe door open and all the cash gone, but 62oz. of gold in another drawer were untouched. The detectives are actively inquiring into the case, and consider they have a slight clue, though their task is rendered very difficult in consequence of none of the money being identifiable.

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The annual horse parade, under the auspices of the National Agricultural Society, was held this afternoon. The Governor and suite were present. His Excellency expressed great satisfaction at the number and quality of the exhibits. The parade was the most successful yet held; the collection of both draught and thoroughbred stallions being remarkably good. An interesting feature of the parade was the exhibition of trotting stallions and mares, recently imported by Mr. Robert Austin.

The Hospital for Incurables was opened to-day by the Mayor of Melbourne. The building has cost £8000, the bulk of which was contributed by Mrs. Austin, of Barwon Park. It will accommodate about 60 patients. Several beds have already been applied for. In addition to her donation to the building fund, Mrs. Austin contributed £2000 as the nucleus of an endowment for the maintenance of the institution, and £1000 as endowment for the purpose of providing for the conduct of religious services.

The Orient steamship John Elder arrived this morning at half-past 3 from London, via Cape Town. Before coming up the bay the vessel was taken into quarantine in consequence of the presence of smallpox at Cape Town, but the cases there were mild, and not increasing. The John Elder was consequently not long detained. Several passengers, including five members of Wallace's Comic Opera Troupe, were taken on board at Cape Town, after having first been subjected to a careful examination by the medical officer. The steamer's dates are—Plymouth, 1st ultimo; and Cape Town, 21th. She brings 383 passengers, of whom 184 are for Sydney. The passage was a very pleasant one, the members of the Opera Company entertaining the passengers on the voyage. Captain Cooper, who was last here in the Sorata, has again joined the John Elder. The Sydney mails will be sent overland in the morning.

A difficulty has arisen in connection with the new Princes Bridge in reference to the character of the stone to be used for ornamentation. The City Council urge the employment of granite or blue stone, but the Engineer of the Public Works Department recommends Stawell freestone. When this question is settled tenders are to be called.

It having been ascertained that there is a fall of 27 feet in the level of the Yarra at the neck between Yarra Bend and Johnstone-street Bridge an application has been made to the Minister of Lands to permit a tunnel to be bored under Studley Park at the neck, in order to use the water-power then available for generating electricity. It is calculated that force would be sufficient to produce electricity for lighting the whole of Melbourne and the suburbs. Mr. Madden is considering whether it is advisable that the right should be given up by Government, except under stringent conditions.

Typhoid fever having appeared at Whittlesea, on the watershed of Bruce's Creek, the Yan Yean authorities have diverted this tributary from the Plenty in order to avoid the possibility of the water supply becoming tainted. Twenty million gallons daily are now running to waste.

At the meeting of the University Council to-day, Professor Andrew moved that the press be admitted to the meetings whilst legislative business is being transacted. After a long discussion, an amendment was moved that the Registrar furnish a précis to the press, upon which Sir William Stawell moved in addition a clause prohibiting members from giving information to the press. The discussion was ultimately adjourned.

Mr. Henry Weigall, who arrived in the colony in 1850 by the same vessel which brought Sir Henry Barkly as Governor, died to-day, at his residence, South Lodge, Kyneton, at the advanced age of 83 years. Mr. Weigall was appointed clerk of petty sessions at Kyneton in 1857, which position he filled until 1879, when he was superannuated. Mr. Weigall was an artist by profession, and left behind him several lifelike representations of distinguished men. His eldest son, Mr. Henry Weigall, is now recognised as one of the most famous and fashionable portrait painters of the day, and married Lady Rose, sister of the Earl of Westmoreland. The deceased gentleman married a sister of Dr. Thoyre Smith, the celebrated preacher of Temple Church, London. Mr. Weigall took considerable interest in art culture, and his advice was frequently sought by the late Sir Redmond Barry and others. He was seized with paralysis about three years ago, and never since enjoyed sound health.

The Government have decided not to impose an export duty on wattle bark.

Mr. Bosisto, M.L.A., in replying to the toast of the Parliament, at the inaugural dinner given by Councillor Koch, the newly-elected Mayor of Richmond, this evening, said in regard to the Tariff Commission, of which he was a member, that the fair way in which the chairman was acting, and the anxiety evinced by the other members to arrive at the truth, was noticeable; and he thought the outcome would be an alteration in the tariff, which would please protectionists and satisfy free traders. With regard to the inquiry into the Stock Tax, he said that the members of the Commission were profoundly convinced that the tax so poisoned the minds of the Riverina people that while it remained they would, under no consideration, have anything to do with Victoria.

The barque Mary Evans, recently purchased by Mr. B. B. Nicol, of Sydney, 56 days out from Cape Town, put into Portland on Sunday, in ballast, disabled, having lost her maintopsail-yard, and injured the rudder-head. Repairs will be affected, and the vessel awaits orders.

QUEENSLAND.

BRISBANE, Monday.

At a meeting held in the Town Hall, to-night, the Mayor in the chair, it was decided to take steps to establish a Technical College, and an influential committee was appointed, including the Chief Justice and other prominent citizens, to act in conjunction with the committee of the School of Arts to carry out the object of the meeting.

The case of T. F. Groom against Andrew and Thomas Rowen, for £5100 damages for wrongful dismissal as manager of the Werribone station, and injury to his credit by dishonouring his orders for station requisites, was concluded in the Supreme Court to-day, a verdict being given for the defendants. The case occupied seven days.

Captain Pennefather, of the Government surveying schooner Pearl, wires to the Colonial Secretary from Cairns that he has explored the Moresby River and found that the course as mapped is entirely wrong. The head of the navigation is about three miles from the south branch of the Johnstone River. The banks are suitable for wharfage. This discovery considerably facilitates and shortens carriage from selections at the south branch of the Johnstone.

Two men, travelling a mob of horses in the Burnett district, left their camp suffering from delirium tremens. One has since been found drowned in a water hole. The other is still missing.

Over £1200 was collected at Toowoomba on Sunday for the erection of a new Catholic church.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

Mr. W. Whinham has purchased the steamers Coorong and Penola. It is his intention to continue them in the trade between the South-eastern ports and Adelaide.

Information has been received that the promoters of the Christchurch Exhibition suffered a financial loss owing to the buildings realizing £8000 less than their cost. Mr. Twopeny has been appointed managing director and editor of the Daily Telegraph, lately started there.

M. Joubert proposes to organise an exhibition in Calcutta.

The Customs convention with New South Wales states that tobacco made in South Australia shall not go up the Murray under the same circumstances as duty-paid foreign tobacco. Our Customs authorities have had their attention drawn by the New South Wales Government to the fact that merchants are not sticking to this provision, as they are sending considerable quantities of local brands to Mount Browne. Several merchants have consequently received notifications on the subject.

It is stated that the basis of division of the gross earnings at the Port Adelaide wharf amongst the combination wharfingers is the average annual income for the past three years. It is feared that the new tariff of wharfage will interfere with the best interests of the port.

THE TRAMWAY NUISANCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—How the public have submitted so quietly to the turning of the streets in the city and its suburbs into railway lines is beyond my comprehension. Hardly a week passes now without the occurrence of some dreadful accident caused by the running of these steam locomotives in narrow streets, where even omnibus traffic requires to be conducted with care. What necessity exists for this cheap and rapid locomotion, carried on, as it has been and must continue to be, at the fearful cost of so much mutilation and loss of life? To this Juggernaut we have already yielded as victims the old and the young, the strong and the infirm. Those who are carried by it, and those who walk along the highway, are equally within its power. The child who strays for an instant from the pathway, the man who alights quietly from the car when it has stopped, the man who leaps from it while it is in motion, have each been sacrificed. And now, as though these modes of taking life are not fast enough, one car has deliberately run into another, with what effect in the way of bodily injury to the passengers thus chased remains yet to be seen.

All this would be bad enough if these street railways were a necessity. It is plain, however, that they are not. That the servant who is sent on a message, the clerk or artisan who lives a mile or two from his place of work or business, the housewife who goes to purchase her supplies, excursionists who wish to get to the seaside, and many others under like conditions, should find these tramcars a great convenience to them cannot be denied. But it is evident that this is a convenience which partakes more of the character of a luxury than a want. It is astonishing how the desire for ease and luxury grows upon everyone. I can remember when there were no cabs or "'buses" in Sydney, and those who had no horses, "gigs," or vehicles of their own walked instead of riding or driving. The first public conveyances introduced to save this walking consisted of a couple of Sedan chairs, which took their "stand" in Bridge-street more than 40 years ago. These chairs were not patronised, and they speedily disappeared. We then had a couple of hackney coaches established by a person named A'Beckett, who lived in Pitt-street, about where the Temperance Hall now stands. Some time after these coaches commenced plying, the first omnibus started, and it was for a long time doubtful whether even two of them would meet with sufficient patronage to keep them going. Bit by bit, however, the number increased, and cabs and coaches in large numbers came into existence; and now there is a growing desire to do away entirely with the practice of walking by carrying a railway to everyone's door.

Is this, I ask, a wholesome state of things? Would it not be to the advantage of ninety-nine out of every hundred of the patronisers of trams if they walked as in the olden time? We all know the vigour and activity displayed in this colony and elsewhere in the days when cabs and 'buses were not. We also know how much enjoyment and wholesome recreation were attainable in the absence of these conveniences. The mechanic thought nothing of tramping two or three miles to his daily labour; the schoolboy did the same to his school; the young men who made excursions to Bondi, or the Lighthouse, or to other places equally distant, carried their "grub" and tramped their 10 or 12 miles without an effort, and all of them—mechanics, schoolboys, and young men—felt much the better for their exercise. Does anybody believe that all these classes are better off, now that they are whisked by steam from their homes to their shops, and from the city to the seaside? Is their bodily vigour greater—is their enjoyment of life more intense? It is impossible to believe so. We are, by our numerous contrivances, to do everything with the utmost speed and with the least bodily exertion, fostering the fatal notion that business activity is the sole duty of men, and pecuniary success the sole object in life. We are rapidly crushing out the graceful, the peaceful, and the picturesque, and vulgarising every pursuit. And we are doing all this not only at the sacrifice of ease and comfort, but at the cost of mangling, mutilating, and slaughtering men, women, and children in a manner and to an extent dreadful to contemplate. Why, I ask, do not the citizens rise as one man to insist upon the tearing up of these death-dealing rails?

PUBLIC BATHS FOR SYDNEY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I read with much pleasure the interesting letter on "Notes of Travel," by Mr. W. J. Trickett, in a recent issue of the Herald, more particularly the paragraph about the "public baths" he saw in London. He asks the question why we cannot have the same kind of thing here?

I may state that I am one of a party who made a proposal to the City Corporation to lease from them the Prince Alfred Exhibition building for conversion for this purpose, on the 20th of May, 1881. We submitted a plan showing the nature and character of alterations, and offered a definite sum as a rental; to this application no reply was ever made, although I believe the subject was discussed and referred to the proper officers for report.

I may further state that the plan provided for first and second class salt water baths (with fresh water showers) for both males and females, of extensive dimensions, say 80 x 30 or thereabouts—four large swimming baths in all. It was proposed that one should be especially fitted of shallow depth, to suit boys or girls on alternate days, and instruct them in the art of swimming, without being exposed to any kind of danger.

Arrangements were to be made to make the salt water quite pure by filtration, and tepid in winter by a heating apparatus.

The baths were to be placed in the side wings of the building, the centre or transept being utilised as a marine aquarium and hall of general entertainment, &c., &c.

The scheme was mentioned to a few of our leading citizens, who thought very favourably of it, and thought it was a good use to make of the building, and likely to confer a great sanitary benefit on the people.

If the Corporation are prepared to treat us fairly, we are ready to proceed with the work, and have it ready next summer.

I am, &c., T. B. H.

COUNTRY NEWS.

(By Telegraph.)

(From our own correspondents.)

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

A strong S.W. wind set in at nightfall yesterday, and freshened up considerably later on, accompanied by heavy rain and sea. A number of small vessels made the port for shelter before the worst of the gale; but during the night the schooner May Newton, from Richmond River, and the ketch Jonathan anchored under lee of Nobby's. Towards 9 o'clock the latter exhibited signs of distress; and, consequent upon having lost her rudder and lying in a dangerous position about a quarter of a mile beyond the breakwater, the life boat was sent out and removed the crews from both vessels, 13 all told, leaving the vessels at anchor. This morning the weather having moderated, both vessels were brought into port. Joseph Wilson, clerk in the employ of Messrs. Lockhead and Co., shattered two fingers of his left hand yesterday whilst handling a loaded revolver. He had an exceedingly narrow escape from more serious injury.

BATHURST, Monday.

Numerous entries have been received for the ploughing match, and it is expected to be largely attended. All the storekeepers have intimated their intention of closing to allow the employees an opportunity of attending. Much regret is expressed here at the death of Canon Smith, and sincere sympathy is felt for his family. A special service was held to-night at All Saints' Cathedral out of respect to his memory.

TAMWORTH, Monday.

The weather keeps fine; some rain fell during yesterday.

TEMORA, Monday.

Mr. Massey, the road superintendent, has accepted Mr. Morgan's tender for the continuation, forming, and metalling of Hoskins-street. A tremendous hailstorm on Saturday afternoon did considerable damage to fruit trees, &c.

MORUYA, Monday.

The body of Wilson, one of the men drowned at Wagonga, was found floating on the surface last week. A magisterial inquiry was held before Mr. John Forster, J.P., but no facts were elicited as to how the accident happened. We had a smart hailstorm on Saturday night. The weather is again clear and cold, and there was a sharp frost last night.

GRAFTON, Monday.

Mr. Henry Baker, mill owner, of Ninds Island, left Ulmarra on Saturday night in his boat with the intention of proceeding home. His boat was found near [illegible] yesterday, and as no tidings can be obtained of Mr. Baker, it is feared that he has been drowned.

MINING INTELLIGENCE.

(By Telegraph.)

(From our own correspondents.)

TEMORA, Monday.

No. 3 Tynan's is washing [illegible] loads, which have so far gone [illegible]. The warden declines to give an order for Bryan and Cotton's grant, for use as of ground on the South Australian Company's claim. The main reef, which is gold-bearing, was struck on Saturday in the Morning Star Company's ground, [illegible].

COPELAND, Monday.

The Kerrinal Mines are improving. Some of the stone, showing gold freely, has just come in from their Mechanics mine, and the reef is still looking well. They will probably crush about 100 tons shortly, which is calculated to yield well. The Hidden Treasure starts crushing at their own battery to-day, and will probably keep steadily going for some months, as they have a large paddock of very good stone.

The following report has been received by the Government from Mr. W. H. J. Slee, Inspector of Mines:—"I do myself the honour to inform you that I have inspected the alluvial gold mines at the Burrangong Creek. These mines are situated in new ground, in the granite formation, about three miles from Young, below the junction of several tributaries, including 'Opossum Flat.' As early as the years 1862 and 1863 a few shafts were bottomed with payable and even rich prospects of gold, but, owing to the heavy water, soaked drifts, the small shafts, and the poor appliances used by the individual miner of those days, the water could not be overcome, the shafts fell in and the claims were abandoned, and nothing was done to solve the problem as to the payable nature of the auriferous drifts in this part of the old Lambing Flat. About five years ago Tonking Brothers adopted a plan by which they thought to overcome the water difficulty by bringing up a drainage race over one mile in length, but unfortunately the fall obtained was insufficient, being 20 feet shallower at its termination than the bed rock. A local company has since been formed, a shaft was sunk which, when bottomed, realised 12dwts. of gold per set of timber, with 5 feet of wash. A second shaft was sunk which, when bottomed, gave prospects of half a dwt. of gold from a shovelful of wash, or 1½ oz. per set of timber, with 6 feet of wash. Unfortunately, in lowering the pump into position, the rope by which it was suspended broke, and before the pump could be recovered, the workings became flooded and fell in from the surface. In the face of the above mentioned difficulties, the Burrangong Gold-mining Company (late Tonking Brothers) being confident of success, have once more started sinking. Mexter's Gold-mining Company is about one mile lower down the flat; but, before they started to sink, they wisely made use of the Government boring machine, for the purpose of ascertaining not only the deepest part of the channel, but also whether payable auriferous deposits existed in their property. The company put down several bore holes, the deepest being 15 feet, with payable prospects; they also ascertained that the water-soaked drifts were not so heavy, and therefore not so difficult to overcome, as those in the Burrangong Gold-mining Company. Mexter's Gold-mining Company's shaft is now down 40 feet, securely timbered, and as soon as their pumping machinery is erected the sinking will be pushed ahead with a great probability of bottoming on payable gold. Leases have already been applied for fully a mile above and below this company's operations, and the lines is probably not far distant when the Lambing Flat lead will be extensively worked for several miles. Shallow tributaries or feeders to the main lead have been worked years ago, such as the Three-mile and Hefferman's, but the main channel has never been disturbed, due to, as I have stated above, the heavy water-soaked drifts with which the individual miner was unable to cope."

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

THE TURF.

The general settling over the recent Tattersall's Meeting took place at Tattersall's last evening, and passed off very quietly. Mussucrade was in all favour for the Hawkesbury Grand Handicap that it was difficult to obtain 100 to 12. He is being trained by Mr. H. Roberts at South Creek, and is said to have done a wonderfully good trial.

Proctor, who has been running so well in Queensland of late, arrived in Sydney yesterday morning, and it is thought that he will play a prominent part in the Great Metropolitan Stakes.

FOOTBALL.

Yesterday the Queensland team, accompanied by Messrs. Raper, Brodie, M. Arnold, Taylor, Dowling, and Richmond, paid a visit to the Blue Mountains, and passed a most enjoyable day. The party proceeded as far as Mount Victoria, and went across to Wentworth Falls, stopping en route for an al fresco luncheon, which, it is needless to say, was quickly disposed of. Every member of the team was delighted with the scenery, and as the Railway Department had courteously placed a saloon car at their disposal, there was nothing to interfere with their comfort during the journey. The excursionists reached town about 8 o'clock. The match between the Queensland and University teams will take place on the Association Ground this afternoon, commencing at 3 o'clock, and the game is certain to be very fast and exciting. The University will be represented by the following players:—Ames, Baker, Barry, Bayliss, Bowling, Bennett, Elphinstone, Flynn, W., M'Manamey, Mann, Rajar, Rygate (two), Shaw, Tange; Addison, 16. On Wednesday afternoon the Queensland team will play a match at Parramatta against the district club. The local team will probably be selected from the following clubs:—Parramatta, Carlton, Liverpool, Berrima, Campbelltown, Richmond, and Penrith. The ground is situated on the Elizabeth Farm Estate and the extreme end of George-street, near the steamers' wharf. In the evening the visiting team will be entertained at a banquet. The picnic arranged for that afternoon has been postponed until Friday. The Union dinner to the team is arranged for Friday evening at the Metropolitan Hotel, King-street. Mr. G. H. Reid, M.L.A., will probably occupy the chair.

A match of more than ordinary interest took place between the Parramatta and the Parramatta Union Football Clubs on Saturday last on the Beek Domain, Parramatta, and resulted in a victory for the latter by one goal (to try to one goal (under protest) and two tries. The Parramattas played with ten men, whilst the Unions played with twelve. The Unions acquitted themselves splendidly, their passing and collaring eliciting frequent and hearty applause from the spectators. The game throughout was very fast and open, the ball being kept in motion the whole time. The play on both sides was so exceptionally good that it would be unfair to particularise individual play. With reference to the disputed goal, the blame can only be laid to the umpire, who failed to call out time, two minutes over the time having elapsed when Morley for the Parramattas ran in and obtained a touch, from which the above disputed goal was kicked.

CRICKET.

On Tuesday evening last a meeting representing the various printing offices was held at the Currency Lass Hotel, Pitt-street, for the purpose of arranging during the coming season a series of matches amongst the clubs in connection with the offices. It was resolved that the matches should take place, and it was decided that a cup should be given for competition. A deputation from each establishment was also appointed to wait upon the employers to ascertain whether they would be disposed to contribute towards the trophy. The meeting then adjourned until Thursday next.

AMUSEMENTS.

GAIETY THEATRE.

In his performance of Ingomar, at the Gaiety Theatre, last night, Mr. W. E. Sheridan further proved the versatility of his talent, for he portrayed the subjugation of the barbarian chieftain's rugged nature by the soft influences of love as ably as he had before illustrated the growth and the terrible fruition of jealousy in Othello, the madness—born of filial ingratitude—which smote King Lear, and the adaptability which enabled many-sided Richelieu to outwit and outgeneral a legion of foes. The play of "Ingomar" is simply an illustration of the power of love—its power to change the most indomitable overbearing nature to obedient meekness—and Mr. Sheridan in the same part sketches very finely, and with great delicacy of touch, the different phases which blend into each other between the two extremes. He acts as if he felt the sentiments he utters, and so no speech and no gesture of his is ineffective. Last night he was applauded again and again, and was several times recalled, so that Ingomar may be looked upon as one of his successes here. Miss Louise Davenport played Parthenia, and succeeded in winning the sympathies of all who beheld her impersonation. The performance was characterised by maidenly grace, effective gesture, and pleasant elocution, and at the end of the first act Miss Davenport was called before the curtain, an honour which she shared with Mr. Sheridan on several occasions subsequently. Mrs. Stammers played Actea with dignified ease, affording a complete contrast to Mr. Foley's Myron, which was appropriately fussy. Mr. Leake's Polydor was a very clever study of avarice, and Mr. Frank Cates made a stately, effective Timarch. The other parts were well filled, Mr. Carle's Lykon, Mr. Tanman's Alastor, and Miss Sutherland's Theano being deserving of special mention. The whole performance evinced careful preparation, and the result was certainly pleasurable to the audience. "Ingomar" will be repeated to-night for the last time. To-morrow evening and on Thursday evening "King Lear" will be played, and on Friday night Mr. Sheridan's season will close. On Saturday evening Miss Myra Kemble, whom all will be glad to see once more upon the Sydney stage, will appear in "Arrah-na-Pogue." She will assume the same part, and Mr. Walter Reynolds will play Shaun the Post.

"Youth" was repeated at the Theatre Royal last night, when it seemed to have lost none of its popularity. The embarkation scene and the skirmish in Afghanistan were freely applauded, and in fact all the tableaux were received with approval.

At the Victoria Hall last night "Jack Sheppard" was repeated. On Saturday night Smith's Opera Company will open in "H.M.S. Pinafore," with new scenery and dresses. Mrs. J. A. South, as Josephine, will make her first appearance in opera here, and Mr. South, who is well known as having played Captain Corcoran and Major-General Stanley with the Williamson Opera Company, will also appear. Mr. Vernon Reid will be the tenor, and the company generally is a strong one.

Keller's "Night in Dreamland," at the Opera House, is still liberally patronised. Last night the magical entertainment was supplemented by the performance of Mr. Horace Bent, the well-known delineator of negro character. This gentleman received a hearty welcome, which he acknowledged by indulging in some most audacious whimsicalities. His first effort was the delivery of a comic history of England, in which facts and figures were mixed up in a very amusing way, and local personages were relentlessly satirised. Mr. Bent also engaged in vocalisation, and although his first song, which was an old one, did not create much merriment, he was successful with his others, and earned from the audience liberal rounds of applause.

The Wesleyan Church, in Hay-street, was well filled last night, on the occasion of a service of song, intituled "Immanuel," given by the choir of Mount Lachlan Church, in aid of a fund instituted for the purchase of an organ. It consisted, as may be supposed from its title, of a series of songs illustrative of the leading parts in the life of Jesus Christ, the connecting readings being given by the Rev. J. W. Martin. The several parts were well sustained, and no doubt the result of the proceedings were satisfactory to the promoters.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphed last night as follows:—"Dunning, Wallace, and Co.'s new opera company arrived by the steamship John Elder this morning. The company were conveyed to the Opera House in two four-horse drags, where they were welcomed by Mr. Dean on behalf of the directors of the Opera House, and the healths of the company and the success of the venture were drunk by a number of friends. The company make their first appearance on September 2, in a London novelty entitled 'Barnacle.'"

OBITUARY.

THE LATE REV. THOMAS SMITH.

Very many of our readers will hear with great regret of the death of the Rev. Canon Thomas Smith, formerly of St. Barnabas', Sydney, and more recently of All Saints', Bathurst. The rev. gentleman was so well known in Sydney, and was so much in the habit of referring to his former career, that there is no need to enlarge much upon the topic. Mr. Smith was born at Leominster, in Herefordshire, England, and in his early days, as he frequently admitted in the pulpit, his conduct was far from exemplary. After undergoing many vicissitudes in the old country he was at last led to see the error of his ways, and at the age of 29 years he left England to come to Australia, mainly with a view to exert his influence, as far as he could, for good, and so in a measure, as it were, atone for the errors of his early days. Soon after his arrival in Sydney, in the year 1857, he commenced holding a series of open-air services in what was then, in a spiritual point of view, perhaps the most neglected district in Sydney—the region between Parramatta-street, the Glebe, and Blackwattle Swamp. Mr. Smith was a man of intense sympathy, as well as extraordinary powers of oratory, and his ardent eloquence and outspoken utterances had great effect upon the rough and uncultivated persons who listened to him, and it was soon seen that he was exerting a great power for good. Many of the orthodox churchgoers, however, were somewhat scandalised at the idea of a man of remarkable demeanour among the lowest classes of the city, and holding services which were well attended and well conducted, but which were not strictly in accordance with the usual custom. Bishop Barker was, it is said, called upon to put down the interloper that had appeared in the clerical fold, but fortunately the late Bishop took a broader view than some of his advisers, and wisely determined to take the new preacher into the fold of episcopacy. Mr. Smith was accordingly ordained when he had been in the colony only some eighteen months, and he immediately took steps towards the formation of the congregation now known as that of St. Barnabas. It should be mentioned that the church as it exists at present is very different from what it was when Mr. Smith first entered upon the duties of his charge. The congregation then met in a small barn-like building, but they were soon persuaded, by their energetic pastor to raise funds for a better building. Very soon this was found to be too small, and additions and alterations were made from time to time. The harmonium at first used to lead the psalmody was discarded for an organ, which has eventually had to give place to a still finer instrument. Splendid school buildings were also erected, and at one time the Sunday school was by far the largest in Sydney. The chief influence of Mr. Smith was always exercised among the humbler classes, to whom he was ever a friend as well as a spiritual adviser. He was a firm supporter of all philanthropic movements, and was remarkable for his success in raising funds for any charitable object in which he was interested. In the year 1872 Mr. Smith was elected a canon of the Cathedral of St. Andrew's, but in a year or so afterwards he left the diocese of Sydney and went to Bathurst. For many years past the health of Mr. Smith has been declining, and he has had to make several trips to England in consequence. Of late he has suffered from disease of the kidneys, and this, added to an unfortunate disagreement with his diocesan, caused him to leave Bathurst some months ago, and return to Sydney. A largely attended public meeting held at Bathurst before he left, amply evinced the regard and esteem in which he was held by the inhabitants of that city. For some time Mr. Smith resided at Manly Beach, but finding the situation too bleak in the winter time, he moved to Newtown, where he expired on Saturday last. Mr. Smith leaves, we hear, a widow and several children.

THE LATE MR. GEORGE KISS.

Mr. George Kiss, who died on Sunday at his residence, Ventnor, Randwick, was one who had made himself, by his business capacity and untiring energy, a prominent position in Sydney. He was a native of Warwickshire, and soon after his arrival in the colony laid the foundation of the business with which his name is associated. He took a lively interest in municipal matters, and displayed so much ability and administrative power that for two years he enjoyed the position of Mayor of Randwick. At the time of his death he was an alderman of that borough.

PICTON REQUIREMENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Your satirical correspondent "Picton," in his letter of August 10, re the proposed bridge over Stonequarry Creek, thrusts on the innocent public such a glaring misstatement of facts that I must ask to be allowed to correct them. I cannot understand why it is that men, if they must rush into print, will not handle truth more carefully. On what grounds he takes upon himself to make the startling announcement that the proposed bridge will cost £15,000 I cannot say. I can only imagine that he means £1500, which would be much nearer the mark.

Your correspondent shows a lamentable ignorance of the locality in which he lives, and will probably be surprised to hear that from the junction of the proposed road with the Southern Road to the goods station is over two miles, not one mile, as he states, and that by the construction of the said road, four miles in each journey will be saved, and a very steep and dangerous hill avoided. The statement that Upper Picton and district supply only 30 tons of stuff to the railway yearly is as ridiculous as it is untrue, as will be seen when I state that one farmer out of some twenty or thirty sold nearly double that weight of hay this year. There is also a considerable and increasing traffic in sawn and split timber, also billet wood.

In conclusion, allow me to add that the petition was signed by the heads of about 150 families, not by 20 only as your misinformed correspondent infers. I am, &c.,

GEO. BRADBURY.

Lakeham Holme, Upper Picton, August 12.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

About two months ago we gave in these columns a short account of the movement set on foot by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales for the establishment of the Royal College of Music, giving an account of the objects and aims of the institution, the rules drafted up to date, and a précis of the proceedings at the meeting held at St. James's Palace on the 28th of February. Since that time additional information with regard to the College has come to hand. Sir Patrick Jennings, K.C.M.G., has recently received the following letter:—

"Temporary offices, Duchy of Cornwall Office, 1, Buckingham Gate, S.W., May 27, 1882.

"Royal College of Music.

"My dear Sir,—By desire of the Prince of Wales, I send you the enclosed papers relative to the Royal College of Music, and beg leave to express the hope that you may feel disposed to assist in an undertaking calculated to promote the welfare of all classes of her Majesty's subjects, and thus to carry into effect the views set forth by his Royal Highness in his address at Marlborough House, on the 23rd March last. I remain, &c.,

"Chas. Morley, hon. sec.

"The Hon. Sir Patrick Jennings, K.C.M.G."

Enclosed was a pamphlet containing the prospectus of the college, and a full report of the principal meetings held with reference to it. H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught addressed a meeting of merchants, bankers, and others, belonging to the city of London, held at the Mansion House, 20th March, 1882, with reference to the undertaking. Prince Arthur said that the college would not only be a School of Music, but a Conservatoire and University, and would form a central source for supplying the whole Empire with instruction. It was proposed that the college should be connected with local schools, and form a musical senate, meeting periodically and regulating examinations, degrees, &c., and forming a bond of union in the musical world. On the 23rd March, a number of gentlemen connected with the colonial empire assembled by invitation at Marlborough House, and H. R. H. the Prince of Wales addressed them with regard to the college. He said he attached much importance to colonial co-operation, and detailed various steps that had been taken in the endeavour to secure it, and concluded by saying that he trusted to the rest of the colonists themselves to decide upon the wisest plan to ensure local success. Lord Kimberley subsequently addressed the meeting, and it was decided that the matter should be energetically taken up. The following circular and the letters thereto were addressed by the Earl of Kimberley to the different colonial Governors, and the copy addressed to his Excellency Lord Augustus Loftus has been handed to us by the Hon. the Colonial Secretary:—

"Downing-street, May 31, 1882.

"Sir,—I have the honour to transmit to you, for publication in the colony under your government, in such manner as may appear best calculated to secure general attention, copies of two letters from his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, accompanied by reports of the proceedings which have recently taken place in this country in connection with the proposed establishment of a Royal College of Music. I also enclose copies of a paper explaining the terms on which it is proposed that scholarships shall be founded. It will be perceived that any locality desiring to promote the objects of the proposed college may do so by founding one or more scholarships in the college, for the advantage of persons residing in such locality, to be competed for under regulations to be hereafter made; and that private individuals will be enabled, either to found such scholarships, and thus have the nomination of students from the colony to which they belong, or simply to contribute to the general subscription fund.

"I have, &c., "Kimberley."

"Marlborough House, Pall Mall, S.W., "March 25, 1882.

"My Lord,—I am anxious that no possible steps should be omitted which may be calculated to bring the proposal to found a Royal College of Music under the favourable notice of her Majesty's subjects in the colonies. It appears to me that the communication, which I request you in the accompanying letter to be good enough to transmit for the information of the Governments of the various colonies might advantageously be supplemented by a somewhat more general distribution within these colonies of the proceedings which have taken place here in connection with the movement. The object of such distribution would be to awaken public interest amongst all classes of her Majesty's subjects more thoroughly than even proposals on the part of the colonial Governments to extend their practical aid are calculated to do. I have therefore directed further copies of these proceedings to be transmitted to you, and would again request that your lordship would be good enough to forward these further copies for distribution among such religious or educational institutions, municipal or other public bodies, or private persons in the various colonies as may be thought most likely to help the project. I trust that the efforts now being made here may meet with general support on the part of the clergy of all denominations in the colonies, and that they, as well as the heads of colleges and municipal bodies, may interest themselves in their several localities to make known the advantages offered by the establishment of the Royal College of Music, and especially that all those advantages (including free instruction) will be open as unreservedly to her Majesty's colonial subjects as to those residing in the United Kingdom. Her Majesty's colonial subjects have indeed already shown that the possession of musical talent exists among them in as great a degree as in any other nation, for they may claim with pride that they have produced one of the most accomplished vocalists of the present day. I have in past years had occasion in many ways, especially through the medium of the various international exhibitions over which I have presided, to notice the manifold benefits which have resulted from the combined action of the colonies and the mother country in the development of commerce and the advancement of industrial and other material interests; and I cannot but think that the friendly rivalry of all portions of the empire will not now be wanting in the effort to cultivate a refined and elevating pursuit, which in all ages and among all nations has exercised so important an influence on national character, and done so much to strengthen the common love of country. I have the more confidence in making this appeal from the readiness and public spirit which the colonies have always evinced to promote every object tending to strengthen the ties that now so happily unite us. Your lordship will, I am sure, be glad to learn that I have had the advantage of communicating with a number of gentlemen resident in several of the colonies, who are temporarily in England, as well as with former colonists permanently resident here; and they have kindly undertaken by their individual exertion to further the present more extended movement, which I trust will also meet with your lordship's encouragement and approval.

"I have, &c., "Albert Edward P."

"Marlborough House, Pall Mall, S.W., "March 22, 1882.

"My Lord,—I have the honour to transmit herewith copies of the proceedings which have recently taken place here in connection with the proposed establishment of a Royal College of Music, and I have to request your lordship to be good enough to lay them before the governors of the colonies, with such observations as your lordship may consider proper. I need not state to you how anxious I am to secure the co-operation of the Governments of the several colonies and of our fellow-subjects residing here in the present movement. I do not, however, presume to suggest in what form their support should practically be given, but must leave it to the Governments of the various colonies to consider the question in such manner as to them may seem becoming. I trust that this movement may meet with your lordship's support, and that you may feel warranted in commending it to the favourable consideration of the Governors of her Majesty's colonies.

"I have, &c., "Albert Edward P."

By the subscription list accompanying the letter to Sir Patrick Jennings, we notice that on May 11 the Hon. W. J. Clarke, of Melbourne, gave £3000 to found a scholarship for the colony of Victoria.

LECTURES.

The third lecture of the winter course was delivered by Mr. F. J. Holdsworth on Friday evening, at St. Stephen's Young Men's Institute, Newtown, before a very large audience, the subject chosen for the occasion being "A Glance at Italy." The Rev. H. Martin was in the chair. Mr. Holdsworth sketched the rise and fall of the Roman Empire in a very interesting manner, and, after referring to the present kingdom of Italy, and bringing under notice the heroes, artists, and men of learning which this land had produced, he proceeded to describe the scenery, buildings, and ruins, views of which were shown by a very powerful lantern. The views were chiefly taken from Venice, Florence, Sorrento, Rome, Naples, and the Arno; and the beauty of the pictures, linked with the well-chosen language and the poetical quotations of Mr. Holdsworth, frequently drew forth much applause from the audience. The lecturer, in summing up, pointed out that the reason of the fall of such a mighty power as the Roman Empire was that when it became prosperous it revelled in luxury; luxury led on to vice, and, as a natural consequence, decay set in—a moral which might well be taken to heart by young men and this young nation. At the close, Mr. E. W. Molesworth moved and Mr. J. M'Keen seconded a vote of thanks to the lecturer. This was carried by prolonged acclamation.

"The Life History of a Savage" was the title of a lecture delivered in the William-street Wesleyan Church last night by the Rev. George Brown. Mr. Henry Kellett presided, and there was a good attendance. The lecturer, after briefly describing the natural characteristics of the Duke of York Island, and picturing a native house and its occupants, introduced the audience to his subject. Taking the savage from his boyhood, from all the opening scenes of his history up to manhood, Mr. Brown told the audience something of his temptations, of his pleasures, of his joys and his sorrows; of some of the varied relations that he bore to his people, his home, and his family; of some of the secret societies into which he is initiated; of his hopes and his fears; and of his ideas with regard to that mysterious world beyond the grave. The lecture was most interesting throughout, especially the description of the secret societies, the marriage ceremony, and the savage's ideas with regard to charms and spells. At the close of his remarks, which were listened to with attention, Mr. Brown was accorded a hearty vote of thanks.

The third lecture of the winter course under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association will be delivered in the Protestant Hall this evening, by the Rev. W. Mathison, B.A.; subject, "The Life and Works of Sir Isaac Newton."

PHONOGRAPHIC ASSOCIATION.

A general meeting of members of the Phonographic Association of New South Wales was held last evening. There were about 50 members present, and Mr. Samuel Cook (president) occupied the chair. The President said that it was his duty that evening to address to them a few words appropriate to the inauguration of the Phonographic Association of New South Wales. He regretted that the short notice which he had had, and the pressure of many and important duties, had not permitted him to give to the subject that consideration which it deserved, but he had nevertheless thought of a few words which he considered might be appropriate to such an occasion as that. The association consisted of persons having various aims, but all the members were interested in writing, and he had thought it desirable to speak upon the subject of "Writing and Writing Materials." By writing was meant the system of signs by which knowledge was conveyed in a permanent form from generation to generation. Man had variously been described as a "speaking animal," a "laughing animal," and as a "reasoning animal." All these definitions, however, appeared to be weak, for there were other animals which seemed to possess the same attributes in some degree. People for thousands of years had been divided in opinion as to whether language was of divine origin or the invention of created intelligences. Everything had a language—from the tiniest flower which decks the plain to the Southern Cross which sheds its glory in the sky. If they described man as a writing animal they would distinguish him by a power which was not characteristic of other created beings on this earth. It was soon discovered that the living voice was not sufficient to garner the wisdom of the world, and to carry on its business, and to commemorate its great events; and so in the days when the earth was young memorial stones and pillars and altars were set up. After these came the writing of alphabetical and phonetic signs on bricks and stones and tiles, and on the leaves and bark of trees. The practice of writing upon the leaves of trees was one which had not yet wholly disappeared. Reference having been made to the light thrown by the Bible upon the subject of writing materials used in the earliest days, it was stated that, according to Pliny, lead was used and rolled up in the form of cylinders. Dr. Kitto, in his "Commentary on Written Books," had this passage:—"The zealous antiquary of the 17th century, Montfaucon, states that he purchased, at Rome, an ancient book entirely composed of lead. It was about 4 inches long and 3 inches wide, and not only were the two pieces which formed the cover and the leaves six in number of lead, but also the pin inserted through the rings to hold the leaves together, as well as the hinges and the nails." The materials employed for writing by the Cretans, Romans, Spartans, Jews, and Egyptians were described. Pens were of very ancient date. In the Book of Judges it was stated that "Out of Zebulun came they that handle the pen of the ready writer." Books of parchment had a great run in the past. It was, however, in comparatively modern times that the paper mill was established and movable types manufactured, and since then the paper-maker and the printer had revolutionised the world. The power of the Fourth Estate was really greater than that of the other three, for it moulded public opinion and directed it. It influenced those who are the masters of Parliament. It treasured up the best thoughts of the best minds. It had been a great lever which had done much for learning and art and science and freedom than all the warriors and monarchs that have wielded the sword, or worn the crown. Of all forms of writing and printing that had been invented he thought that that which they had determined to promote was the most beautiful and the most useful. In the time of the Cæsars the Roman Notarii employed "swift writers," and from age to age there had been a desire to make the pen keep pace with the tongue—to produce a system of writing by means of which a man's thoughts might be committed to paper without a long and laborious process—by means of which the eloquence of public speakers might be preserved, and business correspondence facilitated. The President stated that a letter had been received from Ulmarra, Clarence River, from a person who was desirous of knowing what benefits would accrue to persons residing in the country who might join the society, and that was one of the questions which the society ought to consider. It was evident from that and other letters which had been received, that the interest being taken in the society extended beyond Sydney. On the motion of Mr. O'Connell, seconded by Mr. Cumming, a vote of thanks was passed to the President for delivering the address. The President reported that valuable collections of phonographic and stenographic literature for the proposed library had been received from Messrs. Myers, Hurst, Graham, and Coghlan. A vote of thanks was passed to the donors of the books. After a somewhat lengthy discussion it was resolved that it was desirable to establish classes immediately for the teaching and study of phonography, and the committee was requested to consider the subject with a view to making recommendations at the next meeting of the association. The committee was also requested to frame bylaws for the regulation of the association's library. Five members having been elected, the meeting closed.

The DUTIES and NECESSITIES of BRITISH INTERFERENCE.

There has been a great deal of harsh criticism of British intermeddling in the affairs of all nations, of which criticism some part, at least, has been unwarranted. The mother country, though often in the wrong, has had one most honourable reason for putting forth its powerful arm on many occasions. Great Britain has for many years been often the sole representative of order and law in quarters of the world where civilization and justice must otherwise have been trampled under foot completely. But the interference has very often been not at all gratuitous, but virtually compelled by the duty of the British Government to its own subjects. The function of night watchman and guardian of the peace in all the dark and disorderly places of the earth is not so desirable that a nation is apt to covet it as a cheap wantonness. A vast thing, a costly thing, a standing army, and the hearty hatred of many neighbours are among the fruits of it for Great Britain. And yet, what is a Government for, if not to protect the rights of its subjects?

British subjects go everywhere. The commerce and the industry of the nation compel them to be found in every land where there is anything to be bought, or anybody able to buy. To every such land, too, British money goes of necessity, to carry on enterprises and commerce upon which British subjects depend. Though everywhere abroad, the money is working for Great Britain, belongs to Great Britain, and carries with it rights of property just as the living British subject carries with him rights of citizenship. If the nation did not protect these rights of property and of citizenship, the men and the money would quickly seek shelter under some other flag, for there is not opportunity on the narrow British islands for the employment of nearly all the energy or the accumulated wealth of the people. Indeed, that wealth could not have been accumulated, nor could the nation have drawn to itself so much of the enterprise and skill of the world, had not the nation jealously defended everywhere on earth the rights of British men and money.

Going everywhere, meeting rivals by superior energy, grasping the greatest enterprises by command of superior capital, British subjects have unavoidably required a great deal of protection from their Government. Since law do not prevail, or exist in a great many places, that British interference in foreign affairs has originated in the need of force to protect British subjects. In such cases the course of the mother country deserves from us not censure, but emulation. The United States has much reason to be ashamed of itself because pettifogging partisans and shallow demagogues have made it hazardous for an American statesman to care for the rights of American citizens abroad. Great Britain, however, has gone much further. It has laboured mightily to prevent wars between nations with which it had commercial interests, or to establish or maintain stable and orderly Governments in such nations, and thus has been often a service to mankind. No one will forget that many times the motives have been less honourable, or the methods utterly indefensible. Bullying and tyranny, contempt and rapine, have not been unknown in British dealings with other Powers. But the Great Britain that we know and honour, the mother country that has done so much for the civilisation and Christianisation of the world, could not have existed, and would not now exist, if its Government had not been quick to care for the rights and interests of its citizens in every part of the world.

Whoever wishes to rule Great Britain will have to find a way to keep some sort of order in Egypt. It is a hard decree. But British interests in India, and in the Suez Canal as the pathway to India, make order in Egypt a necessity to Great Britain. The commercial classes will at last appeal, in this instance with tremendous effect, to the sense of national honour. Yet measures must be devised which will not only accomplish the result, but will command the present support of Parliament and the country. The position of the Ministry is one of extreme difficulty, the more because a single decision, wise or unwise, may change the future of English politics for many years.

Since we commented on the beneficial effects likely to follow Mr. Gladstone's new regulations against coffee adulteration (says the Pall Mall Gazette), the trade generally have agreed that great benefits will follow the stringent means adopted to stay and thwart wholesale adulteration. It must be in the shape that remedies can be best applied. The consumer must be protected; he must obtain what he asks for. Those interested in "malt" or "date" coffee are much troubled at the prospect, but in their vigorous complaints they demand, with a somewhat naive logic, that their special commodities ought to be included under the title coffee because they can be assimilated when coffee cannot be; because "just as the people were beginning to learn and appreciate the value of these compounds, and to use them freely, they are by one fell swoop to be done away with; because those who cannot or do not drink coffee do and can drink 'date' or 'malt' coffee. In short, because although they are not coffee, if they are not called coffee they will find no sale.

THE MILBURN CREEK AFFAIR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I desire to reply to the article in your paper of August 1st, and I should have done so earlier but from being in the country and unable to attend to the matter.

I shall prove, I think, before I conclude, that your writer has not treated the question of my conduct in the Milburn Creek business with that clearness and reasonableness which the public naturally expect from the Herald, and he has perhaps, though unconsciously to himself, exhibited a leaning against me throughout his remarks, which, to those who have only cursorily read them, would give an impression which the true circumstances of the case will not warrant.

"From prejudice," says a great philosopher, "no man is free," and I suppose newspaper writers form no exception to the rule. In reasoning and determining questions their minds are often acted upon prejudicially by surrounding circumstances as are those of other people. Byron says somewhere, I remember, "that a man can read and write himself into any belief." Has not the desire to find something wrong in this Milburn Creek case been so great that the press and the general public have talked and written themselves into a false belief about the whole matter, until erroneous conclusions are so ingrafted in their minds that no amount of fact or reasoning will for a time displace them? I say for a time, for time and ventilation always do discover the truth, and this big prejudice relating to the Milburn Creek affair will vanish when calm reasoning and time shall be brought to bear on the subject. I need not occupy much time in noticing your remark that I caught at Mr. Forster because he might be relied upon for a "dig" at the Premier. I do not care one jot whether any one digs at the Premier or not.

I did not reply to the heaps of abuse poured upon me some months back, simply because my legal advisers objected to me discussing the Milburn Creek matter while the case was pending in the law courts, and since the abandonment of the prosecution by the Crown, I have not, until Mr. Forster made his recent speeches, seen any comments on myself which called for reply. Besides, I think it worth while to notice such a man as Mr. Forster, or the writer of the Herald. I do not think it worth while to notice the vindictive ravings of a host of secret or open enemies.

I need not either discuss with you the probabilities of the company obtaining substantial compensation if they had gone to the Supreme Court instead of to arbitration. The company had been advised that they had a good case to take to the law courts, and I can assure you, if it be true as you say that a general impression exists in the public mind that, had no other course been open, the company would never have gone to the law courts, such an impression is quite erroneous. The company would most certainly have fought out their case in the law courts had the Government and the Parliament not granted them redress in another way, and it would probably have been seen, had they done so, that the Courts of Justice held the same view as the present and the preceding Government, and the same view as a great majority of members of the past and present Assembly, viz., that the Government of the country can not, with impunity, sell and lease the same piece of land to two separate individuals; and that whether through mistakes on its part, or erroneous decisions in courts of law, it should, like private individuals, observe the contracts and engagements it has entered into.

What I wish, however, particularly to notice in your article is the following paragraph:—"The account the people of the colony have against Mr. Baker is this, that he was one of the persons who helped this matter through the Government offices and through Parliament; and that he did so while doubly a public trustee—a member of Parliament and a Minister of the Crown—he himself being also at the time the person most beneficially interested in the result; and this impression exists notwithstanding that he left the formal dealing with the matter in the hands of Sir John Robertson. If he wants to set himself right with the people of this colony, he must satisfy them that he acted with clean hands, and that he can look back upon it with a clear conscience; that he had a good case, and that he prosecuted it by fair means; and that his influence as a member and a Minister was never in any way improperly used to forward his own interest. He certainly has not produced the impression as yet. If the public take a wrong view of the case, he has himself very largely to blame for it. If he has any fresh evidence to adduce, the public will not be unwilling to listen to it. It is undoubtedly prejudiced against him at present, because it looks upon itself as having been victimised to the extent of £17,000, and upon Mr. Baker as having been no unimportant agent in bringing about the result. If he can show that the money was fairly due, and that from first to last his conduct was upright, he will rehabilitate his position, but not otherwise. Certainly nothing will be gained by simply complaining that he has been badly treated."

The above statement will, I should think, make the confusion in this matter worse confounded. The other day the charge against me seemed to be that I had not fulfilled my trust faithfully to the shareholders of the company; at least, so said the Attorney-General, but so said not the shareholders themselves. Now we have the authority of the Herald that the people of the country have quite another account against me. Public opinion, you say, is that I helped the matter of the compensation through the public offices and through Parliament, while at the same time I was a Minister and a member of Parliament. If, indeed, I did this, then do I deserve all I have suffered, and more—much more; but it is false, utterly and completely false. How, let me ask, do you get at it, that public opinion points to these serious charges against me? Where is there a particle of evidence that I acted so dishonourably? There have been two most searching inquiries into this business, and both in the evidence and report of the commission, and in the record of the trial, you cannot find one tittle of evidence to justify such an assumption. Search the records of Parliament and the reports of the debates for the last two years, and you shall not find that, with all the acrimony of debate, any one member has ever charged me with interfering with himself or other members in this matter, or of influencing their votes. No man of the past or present Parliaments can make such a charge, and I publicly defy any man to do it. I was scrupulously particular in this matter, and in this I stand, I say, fearlessly above suspicion.

Again, as to the public offices: who has ever said publicly that I used any influence to further this compensation by influencing Civil servants? I refused, from my entry upon office, to have anything to do with the business. It was initiated by my predecessor, and I handed the matter, without looking at a paper in connection with it, not to Sir John Robertson, as you say, but to Sir Henry Parkes, who, upon consulting the Cabinet, handed it to Sir John Robertson to be dealt with. I publicly and fearlessly state that never once upon any occasion did I speak to, or attempt to influence, any officer of the Mines, or any other departments, in respect to this matter, except, indeed, in telling the Under-Secretary for Mines that I would not give any instructions in regard to the business, and would hear nothing about it; and, indeed, never speaking even to him on the matter except in the most general terms, every word of which might be repeated. This is my statement, let any man contradict it if he can. It is quite evident that had public opinion been as you say, some investigation would have been made as to my conduct, both before the commission and at the trial. There was no leaning towards me in those inquiries; that is pretty evident, I should think. But you say, if I wish to set myself right with the public, I must satisfy them I have acted with clean hands in this matter. So I am to go about trying to prove a negative, or never be reinstated in public opinion. In any other matter but this Milburn Creek business it would be said, "If there is anything against Mr. Baker, let the statement be made of its nature and surrounding circumstances, and let proofs be advanced for him to rebut if he can." But here vague suspicion is to condemn a man, and he is to remain for ever condemned unless he goes about the world trying to find accusers and accusations that he may reply to. Is this reasonable? Is it just? Will the public—who, if led away at times by passion, by prejudice, are ever just and right in the end—will they much longer countenance this? I rely with confidence on it that they will not.

But to rehabilitate my position, I am not only to set at rest these vague suspicions, to give body and substance to vague surmises, but I am now to prove the claim of the company for compensation was fairly due. What, after two Governments have said, the one in effect and by implication, the other plainly and in express terms—that the company was entitled to compensation—after the Assembly with the most full and ample discussion, and with large majorities voted the money, and thereby affirmed that compensation was due—voted it not once and in haste, but deliberately, on two occasions, once in Committee of Supply and once again when it came on the Appropriation Bill—after these expressions of opinion, I am, it seems, expected to come forward and prove over again that which has been proved before by others, or be for ever consigned to the cold shades of public censure.

Surely I am not to be responsible for the acts of the Parliament. The company put forth their claim by petition, as the humblest citizen has a right to do. The Parliament entertained that claim. I and many others think the Parliament was right; you and some others think the Parliament was wrong. This difference of opinion as to Parliamentary doings often exists, and the only arbiters in such differences are the constituencies.

Again you say, "The case of Mr. Baker as a private trustee is separate and apart from his conduct as a public man. The charge against him there was, that as a trustee he helped himself to the trust funds. The fact that this was subsequently condoned by the great majority of the interested parties does not count for much in the public estimation." Here, again, your writer is quite wrong, as specious as his statement appears, it will not hold water a moment. I demolish it at once by asserting that there was no condonation by the shareholders in the matter. To condone is to forgive, to pardon. Now, as was said by the Chief Justice at the trial, and as everyone now knows, the shareholders never complained of the trustees to the Government or anyone else. I speak, of course, of the great majority. There were three out of some twenty-three who said at one time they were dissatisfied on account of the paucity of particulars in the accounts; and one at times, I believe, said the trustees had taken too much for their expenses. But this was the most ever said, and the great majority of the shareholders always said, and would say now if called upon, that they were, and always had been, satisfied with the trustees.

Your remarks would imply that the trustees had defrauded the shareholders, and that they had subsequently condoned or pardoned them. It is not so. They never complained, and could not forgive when they never thought they had cause for complaint.

The way to test this business, as far as I am personally concerned, is not for journalists and the public to go shrugging their shoulders, and saying of Mr. Baker, as a man says in the play, "As we don't know much about him, let's suppose the worst," but for someone to make a charge of some kind, and give presumed facts and circumstances—something for me to seize hold of and reply to. I cannot fight what is called public opinion, for it changes, particularly as regards public men, as the chameleon changes its colour. I cannot combat rumour, for it is only to be a public man in New South Wales to be suspected. What I want from someone—from Parliament, from the bar, or from newspapers—is some statement of wrong-doing, some specific charge against my character. If corruption, the person corrupted, the when, the where; if undue influence used, with whom; if a misappropriation of trust funds, how misappropriated. Surely if there be wrong-doing of any shape it can be put in language—can be stated. But I am told newspapers cannot speak out—there is the law of libel. Well, I can put that right. If there is anything against my honour, it is right for the public to know it. The position I hold demands it: so if there be not any dishonourable doings, these vague suspicions, these innuendoes should not be permitted in. Let the Herald or any newspaper in the colony make a distinct statement of wrongdoing—stating circumstances as far as are known—and I will, through my attorney, hold the proprietors and writers harmless. There is my challenge; let any one accept it who likes. If it is not taken up, but these mean and vague suspicions are still made, I must, I suppose, submit, and let time and the novelty of some fresh object of attack free me from them. I am, &c.,

Sydney, August 9. E. A. BAKER.

[Mr. Baker seems very hungry for some one to enter into contest with him. Considering the very definite charges of Mr. Salomon's report, and that, acting thereon, Parliament expelled him, and the Attorney-General indicted him, we should have thought he had had plenty of charges.—Ed. S. M. H.]

VICTORIA UNDER PROTECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I observe that the array of facts contained in my former letter has not induced Mr. Heydon to abandon his astounding statement that all the industries of New South Wales are "hopelessly distanced" by those of Victoria, and yet he makes no serious attempt to refute the facts upon the conclusions upon which I consider that position to be as preposterous as it is unpatriotic.

Somehow or other Mr. Heydon, in his anxiety to class me with the opponents of land reform, is unable to quote with accuracy. I did not pronounce a warm eulogy on "squatting," and I did not disparage agriculture as "a most artificial form of national progress." I have, however, no hesitation in saying that any form of national progress which is secured by heavy Customs duties on the articles which go to make up the comfort of the homes of the masses of the people is a most artificial form of national progress, although its profits to a few manufacturing capitalists would be undoubted.

Your correspondent expresses a number of views on the "balance of trade;" but until he explains how we could lose £280,000 by buying £280,000 worth of imported boots and shoes, and how we lose £125,000 a-year because our import of jam is greater than that of Victoria by that sum of £125,000, I do not think it is necessary to follow him upon that branch of political economy.

I should like to give your correspondent another "stubborn fact" to ponder over. Protection is supposed to enable a country to fully employ its own population, and to make a young country attractive to emigrants from other populations. Victoria, according to Mr. Heydon, has realised the benefits of that policy to such a wonderful degree that her industries have "hopelessly distanced" those of the admittedly prosperous colony of New South Wales. How then, in the name of common sense, do the compilers of the New South Wales census for 1881 (summary table No. 26) show us that the number of native-born Victorians who have left their birthplace to settle in this colony is 1337 per cent. greater in 1881 than it was in 1861? The number of "cornstalks" born during the same period only increased at the rate of 138 per cent. What does this influx of young Victorians, which has proceeded at a rate ten times more rapid than the rate of the appearance of our own babes? Does it mean that Victoria is "hopelessly distancing" the mother colony, or that in spite of the "feeble" and "pining" condition of her industries under free trade, New South Wales is drawing from Victoria the very spinal marrow of all her progress and prosperity—the vigour of her youth?

I have already given my chief reasons for declining further discussion with Mr. Heydon. He now asks what I am afraid of. I have only one reply to make—it is to your correspondent. I am, &c.,

Saturday. G. H. REID.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—MONDAY, AUGUST 14.

THIRD TERM, 1882.

Banco Court.—(Before their Honors the CHIEF JUSTICE and Mr. Justice WINDEYER.)

RYAN V. NEWMAN.

This was a new trial motion. The plaintiff was appointed by the defendant on October 1, 1880, manager of his store at Gundagai at a yearly salary of £100 and commission at the rate of 2½ per cent. In April, 1881, the business was sold to one Benson. On the 3rd June, defendant wrote two letters to the plaintiff and to Benson respectively complaining of the unsatisfactory result of the balancing of the Gundagai account, stating that business had been done to the extent of £2800, and that the accounts showed a loss of about £50, and asking to have the stock-book, and requesting the plaintiff to come and see if he could account for the loss; and stating that there ought to have been a profit of £700. On June 7th plaintiff replied, stating that the purport of these letters was that there had been defalcations in the moneys received at the store, and that he was the defaulter. Afterwards the defendant went to Gundagai, and saw Benson, who expressed a desire to have the matter cleared up. The plaintiff, being on the premises in Benson's employ, was called in, when a conversation took place between the plaintiff, defendant, and Mr. Benson. The plaintiff asked what the defendant meant by his letters, and the defendant replied, "My letter does not imply that you are a rogue or a scoundrel, but if the cap fits, wear it." These were the words declared on. The defendant also said that the goods were either stolen, given away, or the proceeds were embezzled.

The plaintiff brought this action (1) for the slander contained in the words above mentioned, (2) for his salary and commission. Pleas—to the first count, not guilty; and to the second count a set-off by way of cross-action, setting up an agreement by which, inter alia, the plaintiff was not to sell goods on credit, except with the approval of a certain Mr. Elworthy, and alleging that plaintiff broke this agreement, by reason of which the defendant suffered a loss exceeding the amount due under the second count.

At the trial, which took place in October, 1881, at the Goulburn Circuit, before Mr. C. J. Manning, Acting Judge, and a jury, a verdict was returned for the plaintiff, damages £50 on the first count, and £65, the amount of salary admitted to be unpaid, on the second count.

Mr. Salomons, Q.C., and Mr. Armstrong, for the defendant, now moved for a new trial on the ground that the verdict was against the evidence, and that the occasion on which the words were spoken was a privileged one.

Mr. Want and Mr. Harris appeared for the plaintiff to show cause.

The CHIEF JUSTICE said that the matter came before the Court in a very obscure way, because it did not clearly appear what was the direction given to the jury by the learned Acting Judge, and whether the point was taken by the defendant's counsel that the communication was privileged. He (the Chief Justice) was clearly of opinion that it was a case of privileged communication. The plaintiff had been employed by the defendant to manage his store at Gundagai, and instead of a profit, when the business was sold there was a loss. Defendant wrote to the plaintiff and to the person in whose employ he was, complaining of this. In this correspondence there was no defamatory matter. On the purchaser expressing a desire to have the statement cleared up, the plaintiff, being on the premises, was called in, when the conversation took place on which this action was brought. In his opinion it was a privileged communication. If that had been the only count he would have been inclined to grant a new trial, but only on payment of the costs of the first trial; but there was another count, to which the defendant pleaded a set-off by way of cross-action. The Judge ruled at the trial that the defendant could not avail himself of any loss, unless he had proved that the loss arose from the giving of credit, and that inasmuch as the persons who owed the money were not insolvent, the defendant should show that he had tried to recover the debts. He (the Chief Justice) was of opinion that the ruling was wrong; the matter ought to have been left to the jury to say whether the disobedience brought about any, and if so what, damage to the defendant.

Mr. Justice WINDEYER was of the same opinion. The plaintiff himself required this investigation. The words were, therefore, uttered on a privileged occasion. The Judge ought to have directed the jury as to whether there was express malice. With reference to the second count, he was also of the same opinion. The contention that the defendant, in order to prove his plea, must have shown that he had made efforts to recover the amounts outstanding, was not correct; it might be that the amounts were so small that he could not make the debtor insolvent.

Rule absolute for a new trial; costs of first trial to abide the event.

COOK V. SYDNEY AND COUNTY BANK.

This was an action for wrongful dismissal of the plaintiff from his employment as general manager of the defendant bank. The defendants paid money into Court. At the trial on June 5, before his Honor Mr. Justice Faucett, it appeared that on 22nd April, 1881, the defendant company was formed. On May 6 plaintiff was appointed manager, and his salary was fixed at "£750 per annum for the first 12 months, to commence from 1st April last, with an understanding that progressive yearly increases thereafter would be considered as the bank grew in strength." On 31st January, 1882, plaintiff was dismissed, his salary being paid up to that date. The money paid into Court would give the plaintiff his salary at the rate agreed upon up to 1st April.

On plaintiff's counsel opening these facts, his Honor nonsuited him.

On August 2 a rule was granted for a new trial on the grounds—1. That the hiring was not terminable on April 1, 1882. 2. That it was not then terminable by two months' notice.

Mr. C. J. Manning now moved to make the rule absolute. He said that the agreement showed that the hiring was for more than a year; and at any rate that the hiring did not begin until May 6, and that therefore the amount paid into Court was too small.

Mr. Salomons, Q.C., and Mr. Pilcher, for the defendants, were not called upon.

The COURT discharged the rule. The engagement was for a year from 1st April.

In Equity.—(Before his Honor the PRIMARY JUDGE.)

GANNON V. ANDREWS.

This suit was part heard when the Court adjourned.

In Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction.—(Before his Honor Sir GEORGE INNES and a special jury of twelve.)

BROWNE AND OTHERS V. M'ELHONE AND OTHERS.

Mr. Owen, Mr. C. E. Pilcher, Mr. J. H. Want, and Mr. F. L. S. Smythe, instructed by Mr. John Elliott, of Singleton (Way and Way, agents). Mr. J. E. Salomons, Q.C., Mr. Armstrong, Mr. C. J. Manning, and Mr. A. H. Simpson, instructed by Messrs. Gannon and M'Laughlin, for the defendants.

The evidence for the plaintiffs' case was resumed.

Arthur Browne, cross-examined by Mr. Salomons, said that the estate of Maison Dieu, of which he had had the management, consisted of 4000 or 5000 acres, freehold and leasehold; at the time of his father's death witness had 1000 sheep, which his father had given him in 1850; these were on Coppynurrumbilla; he also had given witness 40 A. J. S. Bank shares; there were about 30 or 40 head of cattle on the estate, which were the progeny of some cattle his father had given him; the house he lived in, Roseville, had been devised to him by his father; witness thought he had £100 in the bank just now; he also had about 20 head of horses.

Thomas Harvey Browne, the second surviving son of the testator, deposed that he had lived in Sydney for 20 years; he had acted as a go-between his forfather and the managers of his four stations—Cappynurrumbilla, Boogabilla, Pulliaming, and Tia; he was in the habit of making periodical visits to the stations, and would see his father on his way through Singleton; the testator carried on correspondence with his managers, received monthly reports from them, and managed all financial matters; on the 2nd August last year witness had passed through Singleton on a visit to the M'Intyre River, and then had spent 24 hours with his father, who gave him instructions as usual; witness had got to Pulliaming when he heard of his father's illness; the manager was sick, and on his return witness took his departure for Singleton, where he arrived on the 30th of the same month; his father asked after the Rigneys, who lived within three miles of Pulliaming; after staying for some time witness was called to Sydney in consequence of sickness in his own family, but in a week or 10 days he again returned; witness opened and formally answered his father's letters during his illness, and on one occasion he had told him about the progress of the shearing at Pulliaming; on another occasion he told witness not to reply to a begging letter from an old schoolfellow, because he was no good; witness was away from Singleton when his father died; his father had managed the whole of the financial business during the last 10 years of his life—right up to his illness; from what he had heard, he believed his father had given both Mrs. Rigney and Mrs. Williams a good deal; he said he had promised to give Mrs. Williams £1000, and gave her £500, but Williams never left him alone till he got the other £500; he believed both Mrs. Williams and Mrs. M'Elhone were very well off; his father had given Rigney Guy Fawkes station, and afterwards took a mortgage over it for £700, which, with charges and further advances became £1600; his father had had some expensive litigations through Rigney—two or three actions; Rigney was a bad business man, and most improvident; in January, 1881, the testator came to Sydney at witness's request, to endeavour to get one bank to take over the whole of Rigney's account; witness was sure this was done at the instance of Rigney; the negotiations were renewed with another bank in March, when the testator again came down; testator was again in Sydney at the latter end of April, and travelled with witness to Singleton, when witness left on the 5th May, on his way to Liverpool Plains; he remembered the purchase of sheep spoken of by Mr. Trebeck as having taken place in March; his father went with him, and in fact it was his father's resolution that the sheep should be purchased; his father conversed with Mr. Trebeck just as much as witness did; the sheep were in two lots, and had to be delivered in different parts of the country; when the reports were received that the sheep were in safe custody, his father sent a cheque to Mr. Trebeck; his father was a most prompt correspondent, and always answered his letters the day they were received; he used to come to Sydney three or four times a year, and was always down when his wool or stock was being sold; witness corresponded regularly with his father twice a week—up to the 29th July; his father was in the full possession of his mental faculties up to the last time he saw him, which was about a fortnight before his death; he said he would stick to everything to the last; he said this when witness wanted him to give up the control of the property, and make each of the sons go to them three months each; witness had never got anything for his services, except on one occasion, when his father gave him a bonus of 5s. per head on all cattle which were sold at the station at an advanced price; that was in consequence of the amount saved for droving; witness was a man of some property and means; his father had started him with 1500 sheep in 1874 on a station; he remembered on one occasion being outside the Post Office in Sydney when Mrs. Williams came up and said, "I will ask my father, as we are all here, whether it be true, as Thomas has reported, that Williams robbed him of a lot of money"; his father replied, "If Thomas did report it, he only reported what was correct;" while that was being said, Mrs. Williams coloured up and walked away; about 12 months before that, his father showed him an account which he said he had received from Williams, and which he said he did not owe; he said that he had written to Williams for money he owed him, and this was the result; as far as he could recollect, the account was for collecting rents; the only thing he showed witness was the letter enclosing the account; witness then said to his father, "If Williams owed me that money, and did not pay, I would sue him;" he replied, "It is a good thing he sent this while I am above the earth—goodness knows what he would send to those who follow after me;" he further said that if Williams had thought he owed him the account he had had plenty of his money passing through his hands, and he could have paid himself, and, in addition, that Williams had said he did not want any pay.

In cross-examination witness said he believed the amount Williams owed his father was £200; the matter had remained in abeyance ever since; he and his brother Arthur had looked through his father's papers, and had been unable to find this letter; he had heard his father say he was going to write to Williams for the money; he believed an account was in the letter; he denied that he had ever set about a report that Williams had robbed his father; he did not know why Mrs. Williams was left out of the will; he was on good terms with Williams, and their children were associated; his wife had called on Mrs. Williams during sickness, but the visit had never been returned; he denied that he had ever asked his father to come down and settle his affairs so as to prevent any litigation with Williams and Rigney after his death; Williams received £2000 when he was married, and he also had an allotment of land and a terrace of houses in William-street; he heard Guy Fawkes station had been bought for very little; Elmore station, which had been sold for £850 was worth £4000, because tin had been discovered there; his father had said to him he had lost £2000 through the litigation about Rigney station; that was 25 years ago; Rigney always had Tia; it was now devised to witness and his brothers; he did not think Rigney was totally blind, and there was some hope of saving his sight; he had lived in witness' house for four months, and if it were not for these proceedings he would be in England with witness under the care of an eminent physician; he had a very good feeling towards Rigney; Mrs. Rigney had been a very good daughter, and had nursed their father up to the time of his death; Mrs. Williams had done the same; his father had given him 700 ewes in 1864, and in 1858 some A. J. S. Bank shares, six Wallsend shares, as well as a farm on the Clarence River, which realized £300; he had also given his boy a farm near Bankstown, consisting of 60 acres, which was worth about £25 per acre; he was trustee for that; he did not think his father had given him or his children anything else; he did not recollect having told his father in 1878 that he was starving; he was not sure he had told his father he would give up the whole thing if he did not give him a share in the stations; his father had said that if he (witness) left he would put the stations up by auction and sell them; witness had been travelling for his father for years, crossing rivers, and finding his own horses, yet he wanted him to pay the rent and assessment of a station upon which he (witness) had 1000 sheep, and witness refused; witness had 1400 sheep and 100 head of cattle on Pulliaming, and that was the stock his father told him he was to remove; he never told his father he was a regular "graball;" his father had told him in 1880 that of all the money he (witness) had invested on his behalf, he had never lost a farthing; his father had had a good many shares in the Joint Stock Bank, which he sold in 1877, in order to buy more land; witness bought the land for him in connection with the stations; witness did not buy any of the shares at that time; he had about 20 Joint Stock shares which his father gave to him some time in 1868; he recollected his father had given his (witness's) daughters 10 shares in the same bank; he had bought some shares from his father in 1879, but only held them as trustee; they were in the name of Alfred Smidmore; witness had sold his 20 shares 10 years, before during a drought; he knew his father had been in town between the 5th of May and his illness; he did not know whether he had consulted a doctor the last time he was down; he did not then complain to witness of illness; during the last two years of his life he had complained to witness of giddiness in the head; in January, 1881, he was not suffering very much whilst he was down in Sydney; he did not know that he was then delayed from coming down to Sydney to transact business because he was not well enough to come alone; when his father came down he everlastingly complained of the expenses of the stations, and about his being short of money; this was in 1878, 1879, and 1880; he was also grumbling in January, 1881; witness offered to pay the rent and assessment of the Pulliaming Station, so that he would have that clear, and in return for that he was to let him take up the M'Intyre Station, work it, pay off the overdraft, and take any profits that might accrue; the whole of that proposal fell through, as his father would not consent; his father never spoke to him about business except on one occasion during his sickness; he said he had put all his affairs from him, as he would never get off his bed any more; the two stations on the M'Intyre he should think would be worth £40,000; he could not say what the entire estate was worth, but he should say the value was nothing like £200,000; they had roughed it out once, and he had made it £97,000; he was not offered £47,000 for Pulliaming; he thought it was something like £24,000; he had no idea before his father's death how he had left his property, and he never read his father's will before he died; he did not know he had made a will, but thought he had made one, and that it was in Gannon and M'Laughlin's office; the testator went into the office of that firm on one occasion, and he (witness) went up the street; he did not know whether it was made or not, as his father never spoke to him about it, and he would not speak to him about it; he remembered his sister, Mrs. Williams, talking about his father, and wondering how he had left his affairs; he came into the house, and heard her say that; she said, "I do not care as long as he leaves my sister Fannie provided for;" witness said to her, "I do not know anything about it, and it is very dangerous to interfere with a man, and many a will has been upset through that;" he could not say whether Mrs. Williams had asked her father to provide for Fannie; Mr. Prendergast, a neighbour of the testator's, had told witness that he and M'Elhone were speaking in the train about the present action when coming from Hay, and M'Elhone had told him "he was perfectly prepared to abandon all claim to the estate on behalf of his wife if witness would give Mrs. Rigney and Mrs. Williams their shares—if he (witness) were prepared to carry out such a suggestion, he would also require the withdrawal of the charge brought against him that he had brought forward a will which was not the last will;" witness told Mr. Prendergast that he would not give his sisters one penny; his father was a very religious man, and attended church regularly when he was in health and strength.

In re-examination, the witness explained that when his father went down to the Bank of New South Wales to get his deed box he found he had left the key at Singleton, and he then went to Williams, who came back with a number of loose keys, with one of which he opened the box; the conversation with Prendergast occurred a fortnight ago, and after the issues had been drawn up in this action; the charge was held over his (witness's) head of using undue influence with regard to the will, by which he understood that he and his brother were charged with having taken his father away and getting him to do what they liked; while those charges were pending he said he would listen to no terms; in addition to these issues other statements had been made against him; either Henry or Arthur Browne had told him that a woman at an hotel at Newcastle had said that M'Elhone had said things about their father that if he had said them about hers, she would have put a bullet through him; the will was searched for in consequence of his brother Andrew's desire to leave Singleton, and his wish to know his position; he thought it was his brother who said their sister Frances had the key; when the box was opened Mr. Dalton immediately said, "That is the will;" the document was folded up in a piece of paper at the time; he believed his brother William had written to Mr. Dalton to come to the house.

Edward Alford, a stock inspector, deposed that he had known the testator for 20 years; he had been in the habit of visiting testator's house, and often stayed a night there; on one occasion, about four or five years ago, he had seen Mr. Browne on the verandah with a newspaper in his hands; he seemed very much annoyed, and said M'Elhone had been saying something disrespectful about his family and about some reserves; witness believed the reserves were on Pulliaming; the old gentleman said, "M'Elhone need not trouble himself about his property, as he would not gain anything by it," or words to that effect; he considered Mr. Browne's mental condition right, and up to the last time he saw him, and he had seen nothing to induce him to believe it was not so; in cross-examination witness said he thought someone else was on the verandah at the time, but he could not mention any name; he had never had any quarrel with Mr. M'Elhone; he believed Mr. M'Elhone had moved that the salaries of certain stock inspectors be struck off the Estimates—witness amongst others; Mr. M'Elhone had also complained that he had sheep running on a reserve which was at that time leased, and witness was sub-tenant—in fact the lease had never been cancelled; witness's attention was drawn to this, and in consequence he sold the 300 or 400 sheep he had running on the land. The witness testified to the fact that he had seen several members of the family suffering from intemperance, but the old gentleman seemed always to keep the fact as quiet as possible. He had seen Mr. Browne fall asleep in his chair in the middle of a conversation.

The case was at this stage adjourned till 10 a.m. to-day.

INSOLVENCY COURT.—MONDAY.

(Before his Honor the CHIEF COMMISSIONER.)

In the matter of Henry Czerwonka, application for certificate. Adjourned to 21st instant.

In the matter of Henry Bessance, examination meeting. Insolvent, examined by Mr. A. De Lissa, on behalf of the official assignee, stated that his estate had been compulsorily sequestrated at the instance of the Bank of New South Wales. Prior to his insolvency he had been engaged as manager for Messrs. Permewan, Wright, and Co., carriers, and he had also been dealing in hides, &c. The promissory note produced was the note upon which the bank had recovered judgment, and upon which they sequestrated his estate. The bill was made by D. M'Andrew, and endorsed by insolvent as surety. At the time the note became due he knew it was held by the Bank of New South Wales. He was asked for a cheque on the same day that the bill became due. He was not aware that the bill would not be met by the maker. He did not tell the manager that it would not be met by the maker. He had the money in his possession to pay away. He was served on the 3rd October last with a writ and a summons, and after he received the notice he wrote to the manager stating that he would pay the money, but not the law losts. He had money, &c., in his possession belonging to M'Andrew. Insolvent also gave a considerable amount of evidence in reference to his position prior to his insolvency, and his pecuniary transactions with his brothers and sisters.

His HONOR gave directions for further particulars to be furnished in reference to certain payments, and the meeting terminated.

In the matter of Stephen Stanbridge, examination meeting. Insolvent, examined by Mr. Rogers, on behalf of the official assignee, stated that he had a contract with the Government for the erection of a post-office at West Maitland. He assigned all his interest in his contracts to another man in July, 1881, but the Government were not aware of the transaction. He got an advance in March of £50 from a Mr. Holmes on the strength of his having the contract. Insolvent gave further particulars in reference to the assignment of the contracts, after which the meeting terminated.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.—MONDAY.

(Before his Honor Mr. District Court Judge JOSEPHSON.)

SMITH V. MATTHEWS AND ANOTHER.

This was an action to recover the sum of £200 for wrongfully depriving the plaintiff of the use and possession of her goods—that is to say, household furniture. The defence was principally not guilty, and that the goods were not the plaintiff's. The evidence showed that the plaintiff, who is a widow, and the mother of eleven children, started a boarding-house in Bathurst street, and in order to furnish it applied to the defendant for a loan. She borrowed £34, but did not receive any of the money, the defendants supplying her with furniture. The plaintiff took to the house furniture of her own to the value of £50, besides spending £8 on new things. The defendants took a bill of sale over the entire lot, and charged £9 15s. for interest, although the money was to be paid back in instalments of £1 per week. The bill of sale was given on the 16th December, 1881. The first seven instalments were paid by an order on the Rockhampton Gas Company for dividends due to the plaintiff, and defendants, according to the plaintiff's statement, accepted this. On the 2nd January four furniture vans came to the house to remove the furniture. The defendants then stated to the plaintiff that the house did not suit her, and that she would not make anything out of it. The plaintiff, on the recommendation of the defendants, removed to another house, and on the 5th of January the defendants sent four vans to take the furniture away. Instead of taking it to the other house, however, he removed it to Mr. Dunn's auction rooms, where everything was sold, except a few articles, which, according to the plaintiff, the defendants appropriated to their own use. After hearing evidence for the defence, his Honor gave a verdict for plaintiff for £25. Mr. F. E. Rogers, instructed by Mr. G. M. Dunne, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. J. M. Curtis for the defence.

HASMOT V. MARTIN.

This was an action to recover the sum of £200, for that the defendant assaulted and beat the plaintiff, whereby the plaintiff became sick and wounded, and was for a long time unable to transact his business. Mr. F. E. Rogers, instructed by Messrs. Holdsworth and Evans, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. J. H. Clayton for the defendant. The plaintiff is the manufacturer of Indian condiments. On the 9th June last, whilst at Camb's hotel, the defendant accused the plaintiff of underselling some of his goods to a Mr. Griffiths, which the plaintiff denied, whereupon the plaintiff violently assaulted him by striking him on the chest, seizing him by the throat, knocking him down, and kicking him. His Honor gave plaintiff a verdict for £25 and costs.

DIXON V. RIORDAN.

An action to recover the sum of £50 for assault. Mr. J. H. Clayton appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Coleman for the defendant. On the 30th July the plaintiff went into the defendant's (Cornelius Riordan) public-house, where a conversation took place between them. Religious subjects cropped up, and the defendant, angered at something the plaintiff said, left the bar and came round and assaulted plaintiff so severely that he was compelled to remain in bed for a fortnight. His Honor gave a verdict for the plaintiff for £25 and costs.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.—MONDAY.

The sittings of the Central Criminal Court were resumed at Darlinghurst this morning. His Honor Mr. Justice Faucett presided, and the Hon. R. Wisdom, Attorney-General, and Mr. P. J. Healy prosecuted for the Crown.

PERJURY.

George Johnstone, a middle-aged man, was charged with having committed perjury. Mr. E. Barton, instructed by Mr. Robberds, appeared for the defence. The information against the prisoner was to the effect that his offence was committed on February 13, at Sydney, before Sir William Manning, during the hearing of the will suit of Rumpf v. Hicks and another. It was also alleged that prisoner, who was a witness for defendant in the suit, swore that Annie Rumpf, a legatee under one of the wills of Darnton Thomas Greenwood, otherwise John Andrews, and Mary Grieves, his sister, went to see testator in his room at the Metropolitan Hotel about two days after he went to reside there; that testator then said to prisoner, "What did you bring these people here for?" that thereupon the said Annie Rumpf said, "What did you want to stay away from us for? Why did you not come home?" and that testator then said, "I don't want to come; I am very comfortable here." The information also set forth that no such conversation took place, and that neither Annie Rumpf nor Mary Grieves was ever in the testator's room, or had seen him alive at the said hotel. W. H. Manning, associate to Sir W. Manning, one of the Judges of the Supreme Court, and other officers of the Court having testified to prisoner's having, upon being sworn, given the evidence attributed to him in the information, Mrs. Annie Rumpf and Mrs. Mary Grieves were examined. They swore that they did not see Greenwood and speak with him as alleged by prisoner. They asserted also, that in point of fact they did not see him at all at the Metropolitan Hotel, after he had left Mrs. Rumpf's residence, until he was dead and in his coffin. Several witnesses were called for the defence. Sarah Button, who was one of them, deposed that she was in the habit of visiting Mrs. F. Hutchinson at the hotel in question, and that on one occasion Greenwood told her that Mrs. Rumpf and Mrs. Grieves had been to see him, that they had abused him for not going back to them, and that he felt very much upset in consequence. The next witness, who was named Ellen Studt, was a servant at the hotel, and she swore that she heard prisoner on one occasion ask Mrs. Hutchinson if he might take Mrs. Rumpf and another woman to see Greenwood. The answer was in the affirmative, and witness added that Mrs. Hutchinson had remarked subsequently that Mrs. Rumpf and another woman had seen Greenwood, and that it had disturbed him. F. Hutchinson, formerly landlord of the hotel, deposed that Mrs. Grieves had asked permission to see Greenwood, and that he granted it to her, there being no objections to any one seeing him. Evidence of prisoner's good character was then adduced, after which Mr. Barton contended that the character of prisoner, though not of itself sufficient, perhaps, to found a claim for an acquittal upon, was of great importance when considered in relation to the gravity of the offence, the absence of motive or interest leading him to swear falsely, the existence of strong pecuniary interest probably influencing Mrs. Rumpf and those who supported her statement, and the evident animus which had characterized the evidence for the Crown. He also urged that it was incumbent upon the Crown not only to prove that prisoner's evidence was incorrect, but to show from surrounding circumstances that probabilities were with the prosecution, and against the prisoner; and this, he contended, the Crown had failed to do. On the other hand, the evidence for the defence, and particularly that of Mrs. Button and Ellen Studt, proceeding as it did from witnesses devoid of interest in the case, clearly showed that defendant's statement was the most probable of the two. The Judge having summed up, the jury retired, and after being absent for upwards of an hour they asked his Honor if a verdict of a majority would be accepted. The reply being in the negative, they deliberated a short time further, and then said that they would give prisoner the benefit of a doubt they had and find him not guilty. Prisoner, on being discharged, declared that he was innocent of the charge brought against him.

POLICE.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

The Bench yesterday was composed of Mr. Crane, S.M., Mr. Dillon, S.M., and Mr. W. Fowler, J.P.

Several persons fined for drunkeness were also fined for using obscene language.

George Gordon, found guilty of having incited a prisoner to resist Constable Henderson in the execution of his duty, was sentenced to pay a penalty of 20s. or to be imprisoned seven days.

Rachael Albin was sentenced to be imprisoned three months on conviction of being an idle and disorderly person, having neither fixed abode nor lawful means of support.

George Murray, alias M'Nab, alias Nasmyth, described as a commercial traveller, brought before the Bench by Detective Wigg on a Victorian warrant, in which he is charged with a petty larceny, was remanded to Melbourne to be dealt with.

Ann Coffee was charged with having assaulted a Chinese called "Captain" Wye. Prosecutor deposed that on Thursday afternoon the prisoner came to the house at which he lives, and made a noise; he desired her to go away, instead of which she became abusive, used threatening language, pelted him with three bottles (one of which struck his arm), took up and threw at him a 2-lb. tin of treacle, which hit him on the head and caused it to bleed. Defendant was adjudged to be guilty, and was sentenced to pay a penalty of 10s., or to be imprisoned 24 hours.

WATER POLICE COURT.

Yesterday, Mr. Marsh, S.M., presided in the Charge Court, and Mr. Buchanan, S.M., occupied the bench in the Summons Court.

John King, a cabdriver, was charged with having been drunk and disorderly in George-street, and with having assaulted a constable whilst in the execution of his duty, and for the two offences was fined £3.

Thomas Regan was charged with having, on the 12th instant, played at a certain unlawful game, to wit "monte," on the Randwick Racecourse, a public place, in the district of Sydney. Mr. Levien and Mr. Joseph Lowe appeared for the defendant. Constable Sawtell deposed that at a quarter to 12 o'clock on Saturday morning he saw the defendant in front of the grand stand on the Randwick Racecourse, a public place, then open to the public on the payment of money, and in the police district of Sydney; defendant had with him a small case, resembling a brandy case, and on which he was playing, with the three cards produced, at a game called "monte," an unlawful game of chance, which is played with three cards, implements of gaming, such cards having different coloured spots or marks; three persons played with the defendant three games, and he won £3, being £1 from each person for each game; the second time the defendant placed the card he said, "Who'll bet on the Jack" (of spades) "£1 to £5?"—"Who'll lay me 1 to 5 on the Jack?" one man in the crowd said, "I will play you," and whilst that man was getting a roll of notes out of his pocket, and getting out £1, the defendant shifted the centre card to the outside and substituted an outside card; the man drew the new centre card and lost; defendant rearranged the cards, and another man laid another £1 down; witness made a grab at the money and the cards; defendant got the money and witness got the cards; witness arrested defendant and charged him with playing at an unlawful game; defendant then said, "You never warned me, you might as well give us a chance." Cross-examined by Mr. Levien: People had to pay on that day to go on that racecourse; the chances were two to one, but the betting was even—£1 to £1; witness would swear that the man who was playing with defendant was playing in earnest; would swear he was not a "buttoner;" "buttoners" generally won, and the man referred to lost. Constable Greaves gave corroborative testimony. The defence was that in order to constitute an offence it should be alleged in the charge and also proved that the act complained of was, according to the words of the section of the Act under which the proceedings were taken, an "open and public place," such as the public were not deberred access to by reason of a charge for admission. Mr. Levien argued that a racecourse and a theatre might be "public places," but they were not "open and public places," inasmuch as a charge was made for admission to both of those places. What was meant by an "open and public place" was a street, highway, or thoroughfare, and not such a place as the Randwick Racecourse. Mr. Marsh said that the police were only doing their duty in trying to prevent the sort of gaming which had been described and in trying to prevent innocent men from being trapped. He was anxious to support the authority of the law and at the same time he did not mean to send a man to gaol illegally. In order that the defendant should not be sent to gaol improperly, and in order that the ends of justice should not be defeated, he (Mr. Marsh) would reserve giving his decision until Thursday.

Inspector Oram prosecuted a number of owners and drivers of licensed vehicles and others for breaches of the Metropolitan Transit Commissioners' by-laws. Amongst the offences with which the defendants were charged were:—Sleeping on a cab, plying for hire at an unauthorised place, not having satchel in cab, overloading omnibus, not producing license when required to do so by an officer, plying for hire with an unlicensed cab, demanding more than the legal fare, away from horse and cab, not paying fare, neglecting to clean waggonette, and having bad harness.

John Slater was charged by Inspector Webber, of the Animals' Protection Society, with having on the 8th instant caused a horse to be cruelly ill treated by working it while it was suffering from a large wound on the back. The defendant did not appear, and the case was heard ex parte. The commission of the offence was proved by Mr. Fletcher, dentist, and Mr. Billerwell, and a fine of 60s. and costs was imposed.

NEWTOWN POLICE COURT.

Yesterday, before Mr. Clark, S.M., James Smith, for getting into a carriage whilst the train was in motion, was fined 20s. with 4s. 10d. costs, or four days' imprisonment. Several police cases were disposed of, and one charge of petty larceny was postponed till Thursday.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

An inquest was yesterday morning held in the Observer Tavern, George-street, by Mr. H. Shiell, J.P., City Coroner, on the body of Alfred Thomas, found drowned, near Mossman's Bay, on Sunday morning. John Garget, a railway contractor, residing at Toowoomba, Queensland, being sworn, said that the deceased, whose body he had viewed, was aged about 40 years, and was a native of England; he was by profession an engineer, and resided at Toowoomba, was married, and had left a widow and six children; he was a partner of witness in a railway contract with the Queensland Government; he and the deceased had been staying in Sydney for some few days, and they left last Thursday night at about 11 o'clock by the steamer Morpeth for Newcastle; he saw the deceased on board after the steamer left the wharf, and was conversing with him on deck; about five minutes after the steamer left the wharf, deceased said he thought he would turn into his berth and get to sleep before the vessel commenced to pitch; witness replied that he would remain on deck until the Heads were reached; he then left him, but saw that the deceased remained in the same place for two or three minutes smoking; after that witness lost sight of him, and thought he had gone to his berth as he had said he would; when witness last saw him, he was standing on the poop deck on the port side, about a yard from the cabin door, and was alone; the top of the bulwarks of the Morpeth was about three feet above the level of the deck; the vessel was in smooth water when witness last saw the deceased; witness remained on deck till the steamer had passed Fort Denison, and then, feeling very cold, he went below; witness noticed that deceased's berth was empty; witness then inquired of the steward if he had seen Mr. Thomas below; the steward replied that he did not know him, but upon witness describing him he said that such a person had not gone down; after clearing the Heads witness once more inquired of the steward, who again said he had not seen him; witness did not feel any alarm at the time; he went to his berth, and at 6 o'clock in the morning looked into deceased's berth and found he had not been in it; witness then made a regular search, which, however, proved unsuccessful; he looked in every berth in the ship; witness then informed the captain that a passenger named Thomas was missing; this was upon arrival at Newcastle; the captain suggested that he might have got out and gone to the railway station without witness seeing him; witness then informed the police at Newcastle of all he knew of the matter and returned to Sydney the following night, and communicated with the police here; when last he saw the deceased alive he was quite sober, was in good health, and in good spirits; the deceased was of a cheerful temperament, and there had been no change in his demeanour lately; he was not in debt, but was in easy circumstances. William Carter, the captain of the steamer Morpeth, deposed that it was smooth water all the way down the harbour, but it being a dark night he went half speed until the lightship was reached; there was no noise on deck as they proceeded down the harbour, and nothing occurred to attract attention; he heard no splash as if something had fallen into the water, no cry, and no noise of persons disputing on deck; when informed on arriving at Newcastle that a passenger was missing, he caused a thorough search of the ship to be made; he himself never saw the missing passenger on board. The evidence of Dr. Eichler was to the effect that he had examined the body, and had found a slight discolouration on the forehead; from the report he had heard, and from the appearance of the body, he was of opinion that death had been caused by drowning. William Sims gave evidence of having found the body on the rocks at Mossman's Bay. A verdict was returned that the deceased had been found dead, without any marks of violence on his body; that the cause of death was drowning; but how or under what circumstances the deceased got into the water, the evidence did not enable the jury to say.

OLD AND NEW SYDNEY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—There can be no doubt that Mr. Obed West deserves the greatest praise for the information he has given of old Sydney; but as correct information may be important on some future occasion, and seeing in this day's issue of your paper the statement that 60 or 70 years ago Hunter-street was not occupied by buildings, I beg to inform you that I have an official record of 71 years ago where, among many other advertisements, there is one of a Mr. J. Laurie, "18, Hunter-street, opposite the Tanks," who advertises rum at 10s. per quart, and gin at 12s. per quart, and intimates that he will purchase empty bottles at 6s. per dozen; payment in Treasury bills, or paymaster's order, or copper coin; also Blaxland's salt, at 20s. per cwt.

I think Mr. West must be in error respecting there being no residences in Hunter-street, as they would hardly commence with No. 18. I am, &c.,

Bourke-street, August 12. JOHN T. PACEY.

HORDERN'S IN PITT-STREET.

SATINS.—We have just opened a nice little lot of very choice SATINS of remarkably good value. Moire Satins at 1s 9d and 1s 11d. It is really a wonder how they are made for the money. We have also opened a large lot of better Satins, very choice and reasonable.

SILKS.—Our Silk Department has been replenished with a new shipment to-day, and we are selling this shipment at less than wholesale houses sell to their customers. When you want Silks or Satins, Velvets, Velveteens, Plushes, and Sarsnets, you cannot get them at a more reasonable price than at HORDERN'S IN PITT-STREET.

We are opening daily in our Dress Department very choice Goods, far outrivalling anything ever produced before. Such soft, light, durable stuff, and such beautiful shades. Prices—8d, 9d, 10½d, 1s, 1s 3d, 1s 6d, 2s 6d, 2s 11d. These can only be appreciated by seeing them.

In our Trimming Department you can get every requisite to match the above Satins and Dresses.

Our Garland Trimmings are really beautiful, having been replenished this morning. The prices 1s 11d, 2s 3d, 2s 6d, 2s 9d, 2s 11d, 3s 3d.

GLOVES.—This morning we have opened a few lines in this Department, in all choice Dark Colours, in 2 and 4 buttons; Gentlemen's Kid Gloves, in 1 and 2 buttons, coloured and black, very cheap.

RUFFLINGS.—A nice lot, very cheap, very new, and very fashionable. See them on the table to the left as you enter.

SOAPS.—A large assortment of very cheap and choice Toilet Soaps, cheaper by half than you can buy them in the chemist's. Toilet Powder, also Scents, in great variety.

MILLINERY DEPARTMENT.—French and English Millinery arriving by every mail. All the latest fashions can be seen here. A beautiful lot of Flowers and Feathers in colours, outrivalling nature itself.

Our Carpet Department is now full of very choice patterns in Tapestry, Brussels, Velvet Pile, Kidderminster, and the NEW MORESQUE CARPET, the latest novelty.

Our Bedsteads and Bedding are worthy your inspection. Fresh arrivals by every large steamer. We get through an immense quantity of these goods, and it is really surprising where they all go to. Hotelkeepers find this an excellent place to refurnish throughout. You can get your orders fulfilled here punctually, and with satisfaction. "Cheap and good," that is our motto. A small profit and a quick return many times turned over is far better than a large profit and a limited trade.

Try us and you will find that we make no vain boast about goods. We justly pride ourselves in supplying the public with drapery goods cheaper than any other house in the town. Try us and prove us.

HORDERN'S, IN PITT-STREET, the CHEAPEST DRAPERS in Australia.

the latter street dividing the land from the Deep Dene Estate.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, on FRIDAY, 18th August, at 11 o'clock,

1.—THE TERRACES, LIVERPOOL-STREET EAST, at the CITY BOUNDARY, between the New South Head and the Glenmore roads.

This COMMODIOUS FIRST-CLASS FAMILY RESIDENCE is built in a most substantial manner of stone and brick, the work being of an unusually massive character. There is a verandah 11 feet wide in front, and the accommodation comprises—

ON THE GROUND FLOOR—Hall, dining and drawing rooms, 28 x 18 (both lofty fine apartments), breakfast-room, day nursery, library, pantry, glass and china closet, storeroom, &c.

ON THE UPPER FLOOR, approached by a wide handsome staircase, are best bedroom, 28 x 18, a very beautiful lofty apartment, with dressing-room and six other bedrooms.

ATTACHED to the HOUSE are the following OUTBUILDINGS:—Large kitchen, with range, laundry, with copper, scullery, dairy, knife and boot room, and coal and wood house; detached are larder, bathroom, and servants' sleeping rooms. The other outbuildings include stable, loft, groom's room, and large shed.

THE GROUNDS contain an area of upwards of TWO ACRES FREEHOLD LAND, with about 550 FEET STREET FRONTAGE.

The whole are TERRACED by stone retaining walls, and otherwise highly improved.

THE GARDEN is so well known, and enjoys so high a repute for tasteful arrangement and sylvan beauty as scarcely to need comment. It was originally laid out and planted by a well-known amateur florist and botanist. An EDUCATED AND JUDICIOUS ARBORESCENCE pervades the whole, which may be fitly described as one brilliant mass of MAGNIFICENT TREES AND RARE SHRUBS of mature growth, glorious in height, perfect in form, exquisite in symmetry, clumped and clustered together in a most attractive manner, so as to form a broad effective picture, bright with nearly perpetual bloom, delightfully secluded as if in the deepest heart of a sequestered wood. THE SITE OF THE HOUSE is elevated, commanding a fine view of the harbour and surrounding scenery, and the land, UPWARDS OF TWO ACRES, a few yards from THE CITY BOUNDARY, and within easy walking distance of its business centre, has not only a present, but an IMMENSE PROSPECTIVE VALUE FOR FUTURE SUBDIVISION, when public exigencies require the destruction of so complete a GENTLEMAN'S FAMILY HOMESTEAD.

2.—CHOICE VILLA SITE, adjoining the above, containing about ONE ACRE, with extensive frontages to Deep Dene-crescent and Stephen-street.

CARDS to view may be obtained on application at the Rooms.

Plan on view at the Rooms.

TERMS, LIBERAL.

WARREGO DISTRICT, N. S. W.

GRIFFITHS and WEAVER have received instructions to sell by auction, at the Exchange, Sydney, on WEDNESDAY, 16th August, at half-past 2 o'clock,

THE COLLEWAROY STATION, containing an estimated area of 76,000 acres of Crown Lands, together with a choice well-bred herd of ABOUT 2000 CATTLE.

This property is situated on the west side of the Barwon River, to which it has a frontage of about 10 miles, and is bounded on the north by the noted Booroома station, and on the south by Quantambone.

The boundaries are all fenced, and the country is of the richest fattening description, and is specially adapted for sheep, and every acre available.

The improvements comprise comfortable homestead with all necessary accommodation for working the herd to advantage.

This property is most conveniently situated for cheap carriage by steamers, and also commands the principal markets of Australia, and for fattening qualities cannot be surpassed.

For plans and further particulars apply to GRIFFITHS and WEAVER, Sydney.

WE SELL at FACTORY PRICES for the next 30 days. Inspection invited. American Novelty Co., Pitt-st.
